A selection from the best unpublished jokes that are currently going the rounds

A noted explorer was describing his adventures in far-away, exotic Penango-Penugo.

"The women there have their bosoms in the back, instead of the front," he told his listeners.

"They must be pretty wierd looking creatures," one of his audience ventured.

"They're not much to look at," admitted the explorer," but they sure are a helluva lot of fun to dance with."

"I've got a great client that I can't get placed at any of the studios," moaned a Hollywood agent.

"What's the client like?" asked another agent.

"Got a build like Jayne Mansfield, sings like Dinah Shore and can act like Audrey Hepburn," was the reply.

"I can't see where you'd have any trouble placing her," he was told.

"Her???" exploded the agent, "it's not a her, it's a him."

Their plane wrecked over the jungle, three mining engineers fell into the hands of cannibals. They were promptly dumped into separate pots, over sizzling fires to be cooked for a big feast. As the flames flicked about the pots and the water began to boil, a self satisfied smirk crept over the face of one of them.

"What the hell are you grinning so smugly about?" one of his companions asked. "Here we are being boiled alive and you're grinning like a contented idiot."

"I fixed 'em," answer the happy one, "I just spit in the gravy."

And while on the subject, have you heard about the Cannibal who had to go to a psychiatrist? He was getting so he couldn't stomach people.

Elmer and Annie were celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary. With them was their best friend Jeremiah. Quite early in the evening Annie pooped out and went upstairs to bed, leaving Elmer and Jeremiah to their drinking.

"Elmer," began Jeremiah, "one thing I could never understand. You and Annie both love children so much I could never understand why you didn't have any."

"Jeremiah," replied Elmer, "if you weren't our best friend, I would never tell you, but you're practically one of the family, so here's the story.

"It all happened 25 years ago last night—on the eve of our wedding. I rented a canoe and Annie and I went paddling up the river until we came to a small island. There we beached the canoe, I took a blanket and laid it on the ground and Annie and I lay down to admire the moon on the beautiful summer night.

"After a while I got ideas, and I slipped my arm around her waist and whispered in her ear, 'Annie, tomorrow night it'll be legal and all that. Why don't we jump the gun and do it now?'"

"Well, sir, Jeremiah, she got so all-fired mad I ain't dared bring up the subject, since!"

An attendant was taking three mentally disturbed patients on a walk through the grounds of the sanitarium when a pigeon flying over head made several direct hits.

"Stay right here," instructed the attendant, "I'll be back in a jiffy with some toilet tissue."

As the attendant tore off on his errand, one patient looked at the others and said, "He's nuttier than we are. Why, by the time he gets back that pigeon will be miles away."

The twelve year old little girl said to the eleven year old little girl, "My mama says I shouldn't play with you any more because I know more about life than you do and might give you wrong ideas."

"You don't know any more than I do," replied the eleven year old.

"Oh yes I do."

"Oh no you don't."

"Alright, then," concurred the older lass, "if you know so much, tell me, who made you?"

"After only a moment's thought, the eleven year old snapped back, "You mean originally or lately?"

On the eve of her marriage the bride got advice from her mother. "Daughter," said mama, "if you wish to maintain the dignity of your marriage and the respect of your husband, never appear before him completely disrobed."

The girl thanked mama.

After she had been married, and most happily too, for a few weeks, her husband discreetly inquired if there'd been any insanity in her family.

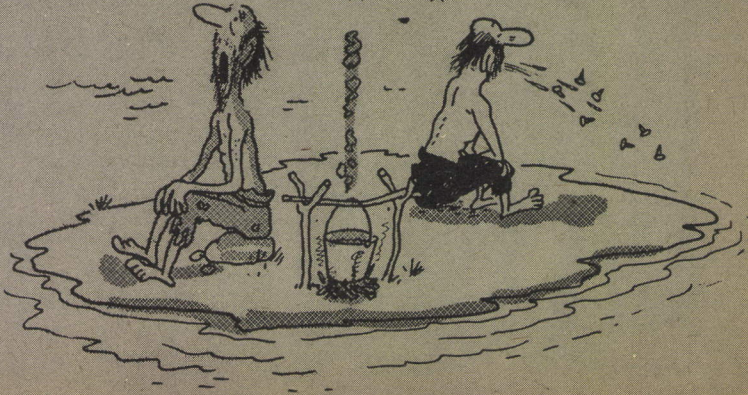

"I don't understand," said the flabbergasted bride. "What do you mean?"

"I mean," countered the hubby, "purely and simply has anyone in your family ever been nuts, whacky, insane, crazy."

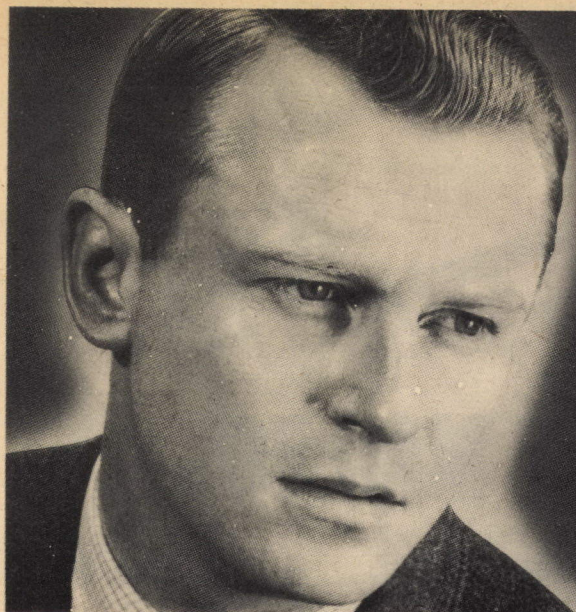

"Of course not," answered the bride. "What makes you ask that?"

"Well, if you're not nuts, will you tell me why you haven't taken off your hat since we've been married!"

"Well, that's the last of the shoes."

How Long Since You've Had a REAL Raise?

Are you just marking time in your job while others move ahead? Here's what you can do about it.

A man may work for years at his job, and still be worth only a clerk's pay. Without special training, those hoped-for raises come in dribbles.

You can become an expert in the kind of work you like—and employers will seek you out. Without interfering with your present work—and by devoting only a little of your spare time—you can qualify rapidly for the career opportunity of your choice through LaSalle home study.

LaSalle has been an acknowledged leader in home education for 53 years. It is the only accredited correspondence University in the country. It has provided training in business, high school and technical subjects to more than 1,500,000 ambitious men and women.

More than 5,300 Certified Public Accountants today are LaSalle alumni. Each year more Law students enroll with LaSalle than with any other Law School in the country. And LaSalle has earned similar distinctions in all its other departments. Its faculty is college-level and includes some of the country's foremost practicing specialists and instructors. That's why your training is in good, experienced hands . . . why your LaSalle diploma will be respected by every employer.

Mailing the coupon below may be the start of a whole new future for you . . . may be the first step in getting a more important job, higher pay, all of the good things that go with success. INSIDE OUR MAILBOX

Those High Flying Fly Girls!

Sirs:

I'm writing to tell you that Margo Moore the doll who did that yarn on the airline stewardesses, knows as much about those sky cuties as I know about picking magazines. After all, I picked yours and after reading the article Jet Propelled Sirens Of The Airways I decided to try my luck with a few of those fly-girls. One pelted me with her purse (Margo didn't mention how heavy those purses were), another gave me a lecture on the perils and pitfalls of sex and the third called a cop. That's my story and I'm going to sue you for every cent you have. What do you think of that?

T.F.R.

CHICAGO, ILL.

Sirs:

I read INSIDE STORY for the first time at a friend's house and felt that I must write and tell you that I think it's about time someone exposed all this hogwash about fall out shelters. I can't say I was happy to read the article as everyone including me, hates to admit that death is staring them in the face but the facts are there and you had the guts to print them. More power to you and let's have more hard hitting stories like it. Next time I'll even purchase my own copy.

F.O.

BUTTE, MONTANA

One thing we'll say for F. O. he (or she) sure knows how to end a letter.
—ED

In the words of Jack Paar, "Get in line."—ED

Sirs:

That story on airline stewardesses was terrific. I never thought they could be so much fun, your reporting is so great that I'm enclosing three bucks for a two year subscription.

G. J.

SEATTLE, WASH.

Never mind the three bucks, G. J. send us some addresses.—ED

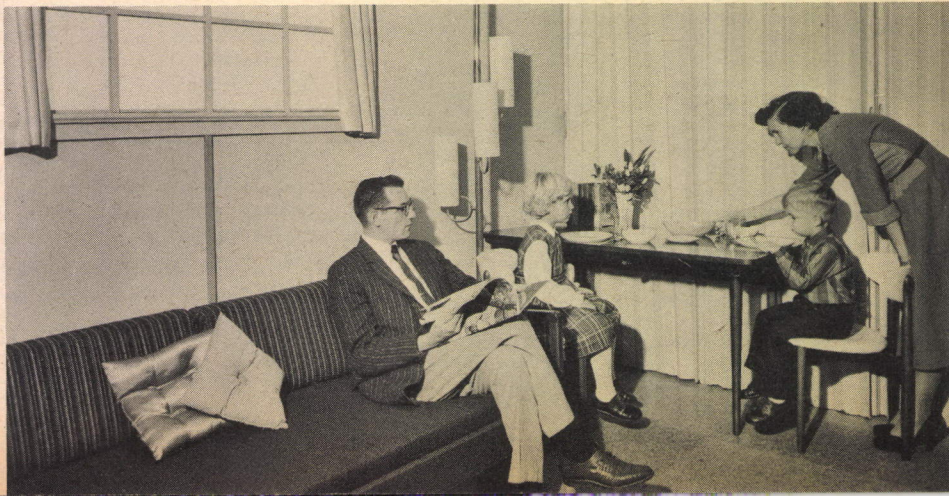

Sirs:

I have never in my life been so appalled as I was when I read that terrible story by Ted Allen on fall-out shelters. It's just about the worst bit of reporting ever printed. And why you ever stooped to publish it I'll never know. Even if it was true you've got not business telling millions of people that they are doomed. You must think you're a supreme being to condemn millions of people to death...

S. K.

PALM SPRINGS, FLA.

Window is phoney but no phonier than government claims shelter will save lives.

We didn't condemn anyone to anything. All we did was publish the facts. And here's another fact for you. When that bomb hits even the ostriches will be blown up—and they stick their heads in the sand, too.—ED

Sirs:

One of your reporters, Ted Allen, was careless in collecting his information on fall-out shelters. I agree with him on most points but I can find no valid reference to the fact that the Office of Civil Defense and Mobilization estimates that 23 million people will be killed on the first day of an H-bomb attack on the U. S. All the data I have give the figure as 20 million at the very top.

H. R. Y.

HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

Well pardon us and thank you, H. Y. that bit of info certainly gives us cause for relief.

A Word For Wheaties.

Sirs:

In the years I've been reading your mag you've knocked a lot of people and a lot of things. Up to now I went along but when you take off on Wheaties you ire me, boy. Ever since I read where Wheaties gave Frankie his pep, vim and vigor I've been eating them and they've really done me a lot of good. And I might add that I'm 63 years old and have an address book as thick as your magazine. How do you like those apples.

P. C.

GERMANTOWN, PA.

We'll be happy to tell you what we think about apples as soon as we get back from the grocery store. Bet you can't guess what we're going after.

Sirs:

So what if Linda Christian can't hold onto a man. She holds on to everything she gets from him doesn't she? And up to now, according to you, that ain't hay. Instead of feeling sorry for Linda, shed a few tears for the gals that can't even get one poor ugly guy—let alone rich, handsome millionaires.

B. V.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

We're not nockin' it, B. V. we're just reporting it.—ED

Sirs:

That story on Linda Christian should be mailed to all the playboys of the world, maybe they'd learn something from it.

S. J.

ELIZABETH, N. J.

They'd learn more if we mailed Linda.—ED

Sirs:

I think it's a shame that Linda Christian went out with so many millionaires while other girls can't even find one. I'm just as good looking as she is and have everything that she's got but I never even saw a millionaire, much less met one. It just doesn't seem fair.

Well, now, we're not exactly millionaires, but . . .—ED

LINDA CHRISTIAN

Enough's Enough.

Sirs:

I bought a copy of your magazine the other day. It was the first time I'd read it and I think it's wonderful. The people deserve to know the truth about the actors and actresses they see on the screen and I admire your policy of telling them. But about that story on Bobby Darin. Don't you think you overdid . . .

Sirs:

Everytime I read your rag I stop and wonder just what kind of a life you guys lead. According to the way you write everything is either sinful or unlawful. If you had your way I don't think anyone would have a good time.

Anybody can have a good time anytime, anywhere. All we ask is that if it's a juicy good time we get the chance to report it.—ED

"It's easy," says Don Bolander...

"and you don't have to go back to school!"

How to Speak and Write Like a College Graduate

"Do you avoid the use of certain words even though you know perfectly well what they mean? Have you ever been embarrassed in front of friends or the people you work with, because you pronounced a word incorrectly? Are you sometimes unsure of yourself in a conversation with new acquaintances? Do you have difficulty writing a good letter or putting your true thoughts down on paper?

"If so, then you're a victim of crippled English," says Don Bolander, Director of Career Institute. "Crippled English is a handicap suffered by countless numbers of intelligent, adult men and women. Quite often they are held back in their jobs and their social lives because of their English. And yet, for one reason or another, it is impossible for these people to go back to school."

Is there any way, without going back to school, to overcome this handicap? Don Bolander says, "Yes!" With degrees from the University of Chicago and Northwestern University, Bolander is an authority on adult education. During the past eight years he has helped thousands of men and women stop making mistakes in English, increase their vocabularies, improve their writing, and become interesting conversationalists right in their own homes.

BOLANDER TELLS HOW IT CAN BE DONE

During a recent interview, Bolander said, "You don't have to go back to school in order to speak and write like a college graduate. You can gain the ability quickly and easily in the privacy of your own home through the Career Institute Method." In his answers to the following questions, Bolander tells how it can be done.

Question What is so important about a person's ability to speak and write?

Answer People judge you by the way you speak and write. Poor English weakens your self-confidence — handicaps you in your dealings with other people. Good English is absolutely necessary for getting ahead in business and social life.

You can't express your ideas fully or reveal your true personality without a sure command of good English.

Question What do you mean by a "command of English"?

Answer A command of English means you can express yourself clearly and easily without fear of embarrassment or making mistakes. It means you can write well, carry on a good conversation — also read rapidly and remember what you read. Good English can help you throw off self-doubts that may be holding you back.

Question But isn't it necessary for a person to go to school in order to gain a command of good English?

Answer No, not any more. You can gain the ability to speak and write like a college graduate right in your own home — in only a few minutes each day.

Question Is this something new?

Answer Career Institute of Chicago has been helping people for many years. The Career Institute Method quickly shows you how to stop making embarrassing mistakes, enlarge your vocabulary, develop your writing ability, discover the "secrets" of interesting conversation.

Question Does it really work?

Answer Yes, beyond question. In my files there are thousands of letters, case histories and testimonials from people who have used the Career Institute Method to achieve amazing success in their business and personal lives.

Question Who are some of these people?

Answer Almost anyone you can think of. The Career Institute Method is used by men and women of all ages. Some have attended college, others high school, and others only grade school. The method is used by business men and women, typists and secretaries, teachers, industrial workers, clerks, ministers and public speakers, housewives, sales people, accountants, foremen, writers, foreign-born citizens, government and military personnel, retired people, and many others.

Question How long does it take for a person to gain the ability to speak and write like a college graduate, using the Career Institute Method?

Answer In some cases people take only a few weeks to gain a command of good English. Others take longer. It is up to you to set your own pace. In as little time as 15 minutes a day, you will see quick results.

Question How may a person find out more about the Career Institute Method?

Answer I will gladly mail a free 32-page booklet to anyone who is interested.

What Hollywood Won't

She may be Dinah-mite on the TV screen but where George is concerned there is something finah than Dinah.

by JACQUELINE WRIGHT

“WHAT, IN EACH human being, is the breaking point?

At which point does a man finally make the choice between being a man and being a husband? When is it time to fling back the covers of the marital bed, so to speak, and reveal what has been going on between two people behind the facade of “One of Hollywood’s happiest marriages”?

It was almost four years ago that I sat in a New York hotel room interviewing Dinah Shore after her return from Europe where she had been entertaining the troops. George Montgomery, who had traveled to New York with the children, sat in the room with us, giving Dinah that moral support without which, she used to say, “I’d have burned myself out long ago.”

While Dinah held forth on her trip, her career, her plans, George smiled the mechanical smile of the understudy. He answered the occasional rhetorical question put to him by Dinah, and he answered it brightly and reassuringly. George was always there to reassure Dinah. Sometimes, their friends wondered how long it had been since he had been there for anything else.

A typical Dinah-to-George quote in a leading magazine reads, happily, "He's amazingly versatile. He built our whole house himself, with only two carpenters to help him; and he runs a successful furniture factory out in the San Fernando Valley, where he turns out antique reproductions that are comfortable and are made of wood hand-rubbed until it glows."

The man of whom Dinah is speaking is, of course, a man who liked to think of himself as an actor. Maybe not a very good actor, but someone who was in there trying, and who has not done too badly financially. Granted, his TV series, "Cimmaron City" did not do as well as either he or his sponsor had hoped it would, but he is still drawing TV residuals that would keep the average family in steak if not in mink. He also has fifty picture credits, and was making a movie in the Phillipines when Dinah decided to lower the boom as a result of a romance with Israeli actress, Ziva Rodann.

Of it all, Ziva yawned and said, "He was only helping me buy a vicuna coat. Of course I want a husband, but my own, not Dinah's."

"She Was Flabbergasted!"

The decision was made just before Dinah's live TV spectacular, which followed the demise of her "Chevy" show, and news of the break—which surprised no one but, possibly, George and Dinah—was withheld for twenty-four hours so that Dinah might not be "upset" before show time.

"Dinah Shore is ambitious and often aggressively so," remarked one syndicated columnist in what must stand as the understatement of the year. Dinah Shore not only is a perfectionist of the first water who drives herself relentlessly, she is a young woman with a talent for making other people's decisions for them. "Guests," remarked a "Look" article on the star, "are often amazed at Dinah's polishing process."

One such "polishing process" floored and could seriously have harmed, another singing star named Jane Powell. Jane was guesting on Dinah's show when Dinah "got the idea" for a goodnight song after the dress rehearsal. "It was a tune we'd sung earlier in the show," said Dinah dismissively of this, "so we put it in, and it rounded off the show nicely. But I remember Jane Powell saying, 'We haven't even rehearsed it!'"

Recalls Dinah, "She was flabbergasted—" as well she might have been! "and I wouldn't have blamed her if she never forgave me, but it seemed perfectly normal to me."

About as normal, one would guess, as assuming that (Above) The Montgomerys back in the days when he would have hopped an ocean liner just to be with Dinah. (Below) Dinah and Ingemar Johansson. It might not show but Dinah's a doll with muscle.

George and Dinah are parents of two children, Melissa, 13 and John, 7. Marriage bustup was expected by friends.

a man who has become an important, respected star in his own right, should hear himself being boasted of as a sort of glorified carpenter!

"Dinah is warm and friendly," recalls a friend, "but she also demands and gets the best from others and is even more demanding of herself. If you deliver, she is eternally grateful. If you say, 'Sorry, kid, but this is the best we can do—' you won't last the season."

During my own interviews with Dinah Shore, I found her tiring because she is never herself—whatever that "self" may be. From the moment she enters the crowded room of a press party or the empty room of a personal interview, the smile flashes on, the eyes are bright—and wary—and the vitality seems inexhaustible. After the interviewer has departed, the real Dinah Shore, exhausted, uncertain, suspicious, takes over.

"How was I?" her husband would be asked. As a rule, he replied, "You were fine darling, just fine."

Marital Bustup Predicted

Speaking of her happy marriage, whose end had been predicted along Hollywood and Vine for four years, Dinah said:

"I'll say this for George: no matter how early I had to get up in the morning, he got up and had breakfast with me. Usually, that was six-thirty or earlier. And when I was making movies, I'd get home at eight or nine o'clock, too tired to talk. George waited to eat with me, we'd sit quietly for a while; then I'd go to bed, because if I missed my sleep it would show in my face when it was enlarged on the screen. Besides, I was so keyed up from working all day that, tired as I was, I had trouble falling asleep."

No one can question the fact that when a man marries a woman who has decided on a top-flight career, he has to be prepared, as do the children of that marriage, for a part-time wife. He has to know that when she's doing what Hollywood refers to as "the star bit" his place is away from the cameras. But there can be nothing more frustrating to the male animal than never to have his turn; never to be able to say, eagerly, "Guess what? I just signed a new contract today—or the notices on that last lousy picture of mine were actually not bad—"

What Dinah Wants—Dinah Gets

Not so in the Shore-Montgomery household. In fact, I don't know of any marriage where the husband played a sometimes humiliating second-fiddle to his wife than the Dinah Shore marriage, unless it's the Eddie Fisher-Liz Taylor marriage; where Eddie was frankly Liz's alter ego and coat carrier. George appeared with his wife in hundreds of photographs showing him chucking her beneath the chin, playing with the kids or hammering a nail into place. There are few if any pictures available of George Montgomery being photographed or interviewed while his wife looks happily on. Of course, the handwriting was large on the wall, as the handwriting generally is. The same Dinah who says, "No one, man or woman, likes a domineering female. I select male guests for my show who are so strongly masculine that I can't possibly overshadow them," also recalls, of her early decision to marry George Montgomery:

"I'd seen him on the screen before I met him, and I decided then that he was for me. Later I saw a photograph of him in a fan magazine with a girl hanging on his arm and I felt sorry for her. The caption said she was his fiancée, but I had a feeling she was going to be replaced: I finally met him at the Hollywood canteen."

The girl was very probably Hedy La Marr, of whom Sheilah Grahame says, "Hedy might get George the second time around. The still beautiful Miss La Marr was very much in love with George before he married Dinah Shore. In fact, they were engaged . . ."

This would not have stood in Dinah's tempestuous, often stormy, always determined way. Columnist George McEvoy, writing about the marriage break-up, says what everyone has long known: "It's possible that Dinah Shore and George Montgomery could have salvaged their marriage but it would mean that Dinah would have to seriously curtail her television activities. But if Dinah were to forsake her career and devote her entire time to her home, she'd be bored stiff within a month."

"He Hated That House"

And, of course, no one can turn back the clock. Dinah Shore is big business and big money. She is also big ego and big temperament, and if she weren't those things, she wouldn't be where she is. Also, coincidentally and ironically, if her Chevy show had not been canceled because, said her sponsors, "I think Miss Shore has reached all the potential Chevy buyers she can reach—" the chances are the marriage would not have broken up. Nothing new has been added. George Montgomery's name has been linked with that of other starlets before. Dinah Shore never gave it another thought.

"George liked to throw his weight around and he could be pretty surly on occasion," said a close Hollywood friend of the couple's. "I always thought he hated that house."

Undoubtedly he did hate it. A house built by George to house the Shore marriage, because that's what it

FACTS ABOUT V.D.

If you've never heard of lymphopathia venereum or granuloma inguinale you'd better read this carefully.

By ELMER CRANSHAW

WHEN IT WAS first discovered that penicillin could cure VD, 20 years ago, medical authorities triumphantly announced that for the first time in history one of the worst afflictions of mankind had been brought under complete control. They confidently predicted that within one generation these diseases would be completely wiped out.

Yet today VD remains one of America's biggest medical problems. The U.S. Public Health Service estimates that there were 20 million cases of VD in this country last year. This estimate is low, officials say, since it is based on reported cases alone.

Syphilis and gonorrhea, of course, are the most common forms of VD. They are the most widely prevalent, and syphilis is the most dangerous. It ranks as one of the four major causes of death in the U.S. One out of every five deaths from heart disease, for example, is the result of syphilis.

7,000,000 People Affected

Contrary to general impression, however, these two are by no means the only sexual diseases. Medical science lists at least three others which, because the general public is not aware of them, may be called "the unknown venereal diseases".

They are medically known as chancroid, lymphopathia venereum and granuloma inguinale.

Although little publicized these "unknown" diseases are by no means rare. According to U.S. Public Health figures, at least 7 million persons in this country today are afflicted with them. Many experts believe that these figures too, are low, since many cases are not reported.

In fact there is some evidence that these three "unknown" diseases are far more common today than syphilis or gonorrhea!

Dr. William Fleming, head of the American Venereal Disease Association, recently revealed that more members of the U.S. armed services are now infected with chancroid than with any other form of

There are over 20 million cases of VD in the country today. And this figure is low since millions go unreported.

THE
KHAN:

IS HE CONNING 20 MILLION MOSLEMS?

By JOSEPH AJAMIAN

WHEN THE handsome young Aga Khan let it be known recently that he was contemplating marriage to beautiful blonde Annouchka von Meks, daughter of a French textile operator, he blew up a storm which lately has assumed tornado proportions all the way from Mecca to Morocco, from Cairo to the China coast.

For 25-year-old Prince Karim, Aga Khan IV and "Brilliant Star of Zanzibar" (to give him two of his many titles) is temporal ruler of some 20 million Ismailis — an industrious, prosperous and devout Moslem sect scattered throughout the Middle East, Africa and Asia.

It's not just that the proposed bride is a European "unbeliever". Both Karim's grandfather—the old Aga Khan—and his father—playboy Aly Khan—married "foreign" females with the blessings and wholehearted approval of their Mohammedan subjects.

Merger Is Murder To Moslems

The trouble is, Annouchka is Jewish. Considering current relations between Moslems and Jews, for most of the faithful the proposed merger is about as hard to take as a cocktail of nitric acid and glycerine. And it is twice as explosive.

"I cannot remain a bachelor forever," the richest and most eligible bachelor in the world told newsmen in Paris when the sensational news first leaked out. "I must provide a male heir to the Immamat (the royal line).

"Annouchka is everything I have been looking for. I would gladly die for her."

The Aga Khan may have to do just that, if some of his more fanatic followers have their way. For to many members of the sect his marital plans border on sacrilege. It is reported that he already has received numerous threats against his life.

To avert such an unpleasant consequence, French authorities recently stationed a police guard on the island in the Seine where the Aga Khan maintains a home. They also assigned a 24-hour guard to the apartment house in Paris where Annouchka lives.

However there is an even more insurmountable barrier in the path of this controversial marriage. Two of them, in fact. One is Karim's mother the Princess Joan, first wife of the late jet-propelled playboy Aly Khan. The other is Karim's step-grandmother the Dowager Begum, widow of the old platinum-plated Aga Khan.

His Weight In Diamonds

When young Karim got the nod as spiritual leader and high priest of the numerous Ismaili sect, in the will left by his legendary grandfather upon his death in 1957, he inherited a fabulous fortune estimated at close to two billion bucks.

For more than 40 years every industrious Ismaili contributed a percentage of his annual earnings to the Aga Khan, on the theory that these gifts would come back with blessings. In addition, every birthday of the ruler was celebrated by an elaborate weighing-in ceremony, in which he received his weight in diamonds. Over the years, as the old Aga Khan's avoirdepois increased, so did his income.

A shrewd cookie, the Aga invested the tribute he received in blue-chip stocks and bonds, banks, shops, industries, etc. Thus his subjects' gifts did come back with blessings in terms of fantastic profit—to the Aga Khan.

Theoretically all this cabbage was supposed to be spent for the welfare of the whole Ismaili sect—to build hospitals, schools and houses, to set Ismailis up in business, etc. However, the ruler held out enough gravy to live on a scale of splendor worthy of a legendary Oriental potentate. He maintained sumptuous establishments in Paris, Cannes and other parts of the world, built up one of the finest racing stables in Europe.

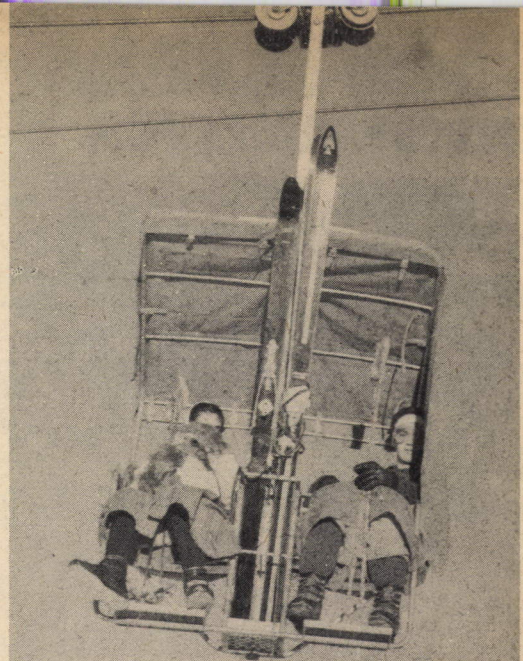

Fast Cars and Fast Women

Karim's papa, flamboyant heir apparent to the throne, never had a financial worry in his life. Endowed with a small fortune by his doting daddy, he casually tossed away millions in fast cars and glamorous females like Rita Hayworth, Linda Christian, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Kim Novak, Gene Tierney and a host of lesser American and European cinema queens.

Aly's half-brother, Prince Sadruddin Khan, was equally well fixed. He too was presented with a private fortune by his father. As an undergraduate at Harvard, he spent more time digging American cuties than delving into college texts. There wasn't much diversion available in nearby Boston, home of the bean and the cod. But Sadri managed to cover considerable territory and pick up a lot of telephone numbers during his four-year stay in this country.

For a time he carried the torch for sultry Eartha Kitt. Then he startled the international set by marrying a curvaceous English actress, Nina Dyer. But that didn't keep him out of the plush bistros and the gossip columns, where his name subsequently was

PARIS IN THE SPRING?

THE TRUTH ABOUT THOSE FORT

By RALPH LEVINE

Proceed cautiously in Fort Lauderdale—it's the training ground for some of the best educated play-for-pay girls in the world

A LOT OF words have been written about Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Tons of printers ink and miles of space have been used by newspapers and news magazines all over the country to describe the zany antics of college students who yearly make this peaceful little community of 63,000 oldsters their target for spring vacation and swarm all over it like bobby soxers attacking their latest rock and roll idol.

If you are over the age of six, are not blind and are able to read, you've heard about Fort Lauderdale. It's Where the Boys Are, and, where there are boys you inevitably find the three B's—beer, booze and babes. Beer and booze can still be bought in abundance in this bouncing burg but, for the college boy on a meager allowance, the babes are getting harder and harder to come by.

It takes dough to dally with Lauderdale's dolls. And therein lies an INSIDE STORY of this peaceful Floridian community that's never been told.

Today the girls are selling what they used to give away and now only the well heeled boy can get the well stacked doll.

LAUDERDALE LOVE FROLICS

Ever since 1938, when the town invited the students to something called a "swimming meet" they have swarmed back every year. And every year, year in and year out, they have turned a sylvan glade into a dump in less time than it takes to drink a buck and a half's worth of beer.

When this inebriated invasion starts the Fort Lauderdale Chamber of Commerce doubles the police force but the students who roll into town boasting new driving records—26 hours from Ohio State, 27 from Carlisle, Pa.'s Dickinson College—are too boozed up to worry about anything so trivial as a policeman.

The Taps Ran Dry

"It's not that we drink so much," one Notre Dame senior explained, "it's just that we drink all the time."

And booze it up they do. The owner of a joint called Porky's rashly advertised a bargain rate—$1.50 for all the beer a scholar could guzzle in three hours. His taps ran dry and before a refill truck could rescue him the offended students had pitched his furniture into the ocean.

After this complete disregard for the beer parlor's property the police force—bolstered to 350 men to stem the invaders—ordered all bars and beaches closed after dark.

This action took on all the proportions of waving a red flag in front of a bull. Incensed by the curfew, thousands of students held a mass demonstration at the beach front and, like a huge tidal wave, marched down the main stem, uprooting everything in their wake, chanting, "We want beer," and "Open Jade Beach."

A Full Jail House

When the police moved in with their billies the students held them off with beer cans, beer can openers, bottles, fire-crackers and fists. Scores of students were carted to jail that night but it didn't stop the remainder from blocking the main highway with concrete benches taken from the beach the following night. Another riot ensued.

"I didn't feel I was part of a mob," explained a tanked up student to the police captain. "I felt as though I was an individual watching a riot."

A third night of trouble once again packed the city jail. This time long distance calls were made to parents all over the country but the results didn't help the police. "Keep the damn fool in jail," was the attitude of most parents. "I'll be down in a few days to fetch him."

But a few days was too long to wait. The Fort Lauderdale jail just couldn't hold that many students for any length of time so they were all released to start all over again.

But, oddly enough after the mass release things quieted down. A comparative lull came over old Fort Lauderdale and the officials in charge thought of ways to deal with the migration which, for all its busted heads and busted egos adds $1,000,000 annually to the local coffers. But while the elders thought of ways of curtailing activity the students went about their business of having a ball.

Living on a diet of beer and burgers the boys daily roamed the beach in search of sun, sand and shes and nightly kept the harassed police force jumping by stealing buses, painting Greek letters on city water towers and dumping six foot alligators into hotel swimming pools.

Sex Ran Rampant

But all of this was just window dressing for the nocturnal nipups that took place on the beaches, on side streets, in the back seats of cars, on roof tops, and, for the better heeled students, in free wheeling motels. Sex ran rampant and every night anywhere from five to fifty couples were booked for lewd and lascivious behavior. Chastity was chased and yearly hundred of girls lost their virginity. Dozens went home pregnant. Freud was right. Sex was the motivator.

The boys were having a ball. They had their booze, they had their beer and best of all, they had their babes. For the price of a movie and a beer a boy was accomplishing in one night what it took him three months and many beers and many movies to accomplish back on the campus. Fort Lauderdale was a veritable Paradise for the predatory male. But just as suddenly as it began it ended. The Paradise became a Purgatory. The girls were no longer putting out. Sex became scarce.

If anyone has any doubt about a gal making out in Fort Lauderdale check the preponderance of males in this pic.

The reason: As one Eastern Betty Coed, who asked that her name and school be withheld, put it, "It's just a matter of economics that takes no economics major to figure out. In Old Fort Laudie the boys have always outnumbered the gals at least ten to one. And when you have preponderous odds like that you have a simple case of supply and demand. We have what the boys want and anytime there are more takers than there are givers it becomes a seller's market, need I say more."

And therein lies the INSIDE STORY. Fort Lauderdale has become the training ground for some of the most educated play-for-pay girls in the world.

All of the balling used to be done on the beaches and in the boudoirs but now the students hire halls and put on some of the wildest, most orgiastic extravaganzas since Bacchus' blasts put Greece on the map.

Cash and carry sex is fast outmoding all other entertainment facilities and if the boy hasn't got the dough he just doesn't get the doll. It's the oldest equation in the world.

And if that pert young thing just down the street in your own home town—the one who went off to college a couple of years ago—spent her vacations in Fort Lauderdale she may no longer be as she looks. Matter of fact she might even be one of the fledgling floozies who have learned that sex can pay off. Can pay for her entire spring vacation and leave enough loot to live high off the hog for the rest of the year.

Which is merely to say that the luscious young things that roam the streets of Fort Lauderdale and crowd the beach front saloons nightly in search of well-heeled pickups have been recruited from some of the best known and most hallowed campuses in the country.

And the colleges are ham-strung. They know what's happening. Every spring anywhere from one to a dozen girls from each school just doesn't return. But what can they do? "Offering courses in 'how not to become a prostitute,' might be an answer," an instructor from an eastern college told this reporter "but how can any decent school justify a course like that. The situation has become impossible. These girls learn more in Fort Lauderdale in a week than we can teach them in a whole year."

And he's right. In no time at all these fillies have learned that rolling off a Shakespearean Sonnet for a teacher is no harder than rolling in the hay with a well-heeled John. And the beauty of it is for the former—they pay. For the latter—they get paid.

No Cash — No Cutie

From January 'til April the gals hit the books. From the latter part of April 'til the beginning of May they hit the hay—for a price.

Exactly how this sleigh ride to sin started, no one knows. At first it was a simple matter of necessity. If a doll ran short on expenses she could always pick up a buck or two from a male student by giving out with a hard luck story before she gave in. And it wasn't long before word was going around that some of the girls were easy targets for a night of fun—especially the ones who'd run out of cash and wanted a place to sleep.

But then slowly but surely it mushroomed. And before the bewildered college boys knew what was going on the girls—who before weren't averse to playing house for a stein of hops and a hamburger—were now coolly demanding, and getting, up to a double sawbuck for turning a trick.

The next step in this erotic evolution took place when word of the sinmill spread outside the circle of college kids. Tourists, local businessmen, and other Good Time Charlies—with bigger bankrolls than the school studs—started getting into the act. Said one junior from N.Y.U., "I've been coming here for the past two years and I've never seen such a bunch of phonies trying to pass themselves off on the college kids." (Among those arrested in one haul was a sport clad in snappy shorts who happened to be 56 years old. You can bet he wasn't there for the beer and booze.)

Campus cuties who could think on their feet soon discovered that by lying on their backs they could live in a style to which no college in the land accustomed them.

Prices soared.

And the college boys discovered that they could no longer afford what they used to get for free.

The result was that some of the gals headed back north, east and west with a helluva lot more cash than they'd started with. Others never went back. They learned more in ten days in Fort Lauderdale than they'd learned in three years in college.

Hit this Floridian town anytime and you'll see them every afternoon lolling on the beach soaking up the sun. Should you be looking at night you'll find them in the bistros soaking up the booze.

And, every spring, when a new crop of college kids comes rolling into town a new platoon of prosties is recruited.

The girls still go to Fort Lauderdale because it's where the boys are—in the spring. But every Tom, Dick and Harry with a bankroll goes there because it's Where The Girls Are—all the time. ■■

The month may be April but Fort Lauderdale beach looks more like September Morn when these scholars really let go.

Inside Info

Here are questions received over the past few weeks at our editorial desk. INSIDE STORY will attempt to answer those questions which seem to have the most general interest for all of our readers . . .

Q—What's this I hear about a girl busting in on Ricky Nelson while he was taking a shower and asking for his autograph? D. R., Woods Hole, Mass.

A—According to Ricky Nelson himself, as quoted in a magazine article:

"In Tuscon, when we were making Rio Bravo with John Wayne, I was taking a shower when suddenly the glass in the window exploded and there was the head of a very pretty girl—looking in at me with her big scared eyes. All she wanted was an autograph." And that's right from the horse's mouth.

Q—A lot has been printed about the antics of the younger Crosby clan in Las Vegas but what about Old Bing. Has the groaner ever balled it up out Nevada way? A. A. C., Wappingers Falls, New York.

A—Not recently, to our knowledge. But a few years ago Bing went to Vegas to play golf in the Tournament of Champions and wound up seeing more of a Tropicana cutie named Pat Sheehan than he did of the golf course.

Q—A lot has been printed about Japanese soldiers committing hari-kari during war time but how about peace time? Is the rate of suicide high in Japan under normal living conditions? J. T., Memphis, Tenn.

A—Very high. Suicide in Japan is almost a national pastime. In 1960, 3,500 females and 5,400 males took their own lives. 1,000 of that number died in suicide pacts. Recently two bodies in suicidal embrace were found at the foot of Amagi Mountain on the Izu Peninsula. She was Princess Aishinkakura Eisei. The boy was the son of a railroad magnate. This ill-fated pair so intrigued Japanese business men that a movie is now in the making entitled, Suicide On Mt. Amagi.

Q—Is there any truth to the rumor that there are nude pictures of Greta Garbo making the rounds? K. W., Albany, New York.

A—The rumor is only half true. Garbo was only half naked. The pictures, published in L'Europeo show the great one clad in the bottom half of a bikini. Only the top part was missing. Next to the silent one was her constant escort George Schlee. He was wearing a rubber bathing cap.

Q—I've been told that airlines and steamship companies offer free trips anywhere in the world. If this is true how do I get in on the graft? S. R., Union City, New Jersey.

A—All you have to do is round up fifteen or more other people who are going the same place you are and have them agree to travel on the same plane or ship. They don't have to return with you but they must go with you. This may not sound like the easiest job in the world but it will get you a free trip. If you're really interested write to the transportation companies. They'll be happy to send you the data.

Q—What's this I hear about Anita Eckberg going skinny dipping in a tubfull of champagne in Cannes, France? I'd known about it beforehand I'd have been there. Why don't you report events like this in advance? M. T. R., Annapolis, Maryland.

A—Relax, M.T.R. Anita was supposed to have made an appearance without clothes in a champagne filled bathtub, but the caper, thought up by the producers of La Dolce Vita, never came off.

Q—Am I going crazy or did I read recently where Robert Mitchum joined a Hollywood charm school? N. Q., Detroit, Michigan.

A—You've still got your sanity. It was Jim Mitchum, Bob's son who joined Pamela Donava's Charm School at Twentieth Century Fox Studios.

Q—Can Rory Calhoun possibly be broke? I saw him working a jack-hammer with a construction gang in Ventura, California. Maybe my eyes were deceiving me but it sure looked like Rory. How 'bout that? T. F. J., Salt Lake City, Utah.

A—Your eyes weren't deceiving you nor is Rory Calhoun destitute. The construction gang he was working with was in the process of building a motel for his brother and Rory just pitched in for the exercise.

Q—Is it against the law to be a homosexual? R. J., Lincoln, Nebraska.

A—Though we've looked far and wide we find no law against anyone being a homosexual. We do, however, find laws against homosexuals relationships. Which, as far as we can see, all boils down to the fact that you can have the name but not the game.

Q—I hear that Frankie Sinatra built a $100,000 home for President Kennedy in Palm Springs. I can't believe it. D. P., Manchester, Vermont.

A—You better believe it because it's true. Whether the president will ever use it, however, is another story.

Q—My mother says that if I continue to nibble my nails I'll wind up with horrible fingers. I am 18, I would like to know the facts about it. Is Mother right or wrong. My nails are not the loveliest in the world right now, but will they improve?

—V.A.R., Walla Walla, Washington

A—Far be it from us to go against mother but in this case she doesn't know best. Far from stunting the growth of your nails, you are helping them. Each time you bite them down you give them more incentive to grow and just as short hair is healthier hair the same applies to nails. The rate at which your nails grow reveals how well-nourished you are. Incidentally, women's nails grow slightly slower than men's, but those on longer fingers grow fast regardless of the sex of the person.—Ed.

Q—I read recently where Charlie Chaplin has been offered a bundle of money to come out of retirement and direct a movie in Europe. The item said that U. S. money was involved. Can this be true? V. S., Ithaca, New York.

A—According to those in the know this is true and the U. S. money involved is being put up by none other than Elizabeth Eaylor and her hubby Eddie Fisher.

Q—I read recently that man's activity is slowing down the daily rotation of the earth. Can you tell me something about this? D. J., St. Augustine, Tex.

A—The daily rotation of the earth is not as sure and steady as you'd think. Dr. Walter Munk, of the University of California's Scripps Institute of Oceanography says that there are a number of things that can slow the earth down or speed it up. For example, the earth can get "spring fever". This is just enough to shift the weight—due to the rising of the sap and the growth of leaves, grass and flowers in the spring of the year—to decrease its speed by .02 milliseconds a day. Ocean currents are responsible for a slowdown of .1 millisecond. And though this doesn't seem like very much it can cause tidal waves, earthquakes, tornadoes and other earthly phenomena that can make things mightily damned unpleasant.

Q—Is it true that Montgomery Clift is fighting censorship in the movies? I've heard of directors doing this but never actors. Please advise. A. G., Brooklyn, New York.

A—There's a lot of truth to this. Monty is banding together stars like Elizabeth Taylor, Elvis Presley, Joan Crawford, etc., in a well organized group to reveal to the public the perils of censorship. Just how this will be done has not yet been determined but from what we can learn the stars will do a series of one night stands explaining to the public how censorship smothers free expression in our movie houses and theatres. They will then ask that the people appeal to their congressmen to lift the censorship ban. We don't know what effect this will have on the blue-noses and "do-gooders" of the country but we'd like to send our congratulations to Monty for a damned good idea.

Q—They say that the way you can tell a good actor or actress is by how they react to the unexpected, like missed cues or fluffed lines, etc. Since I expect to enter dramatic school next season, I'd like to know about this. Is it true? . . . M. L., Detroit, Mich.

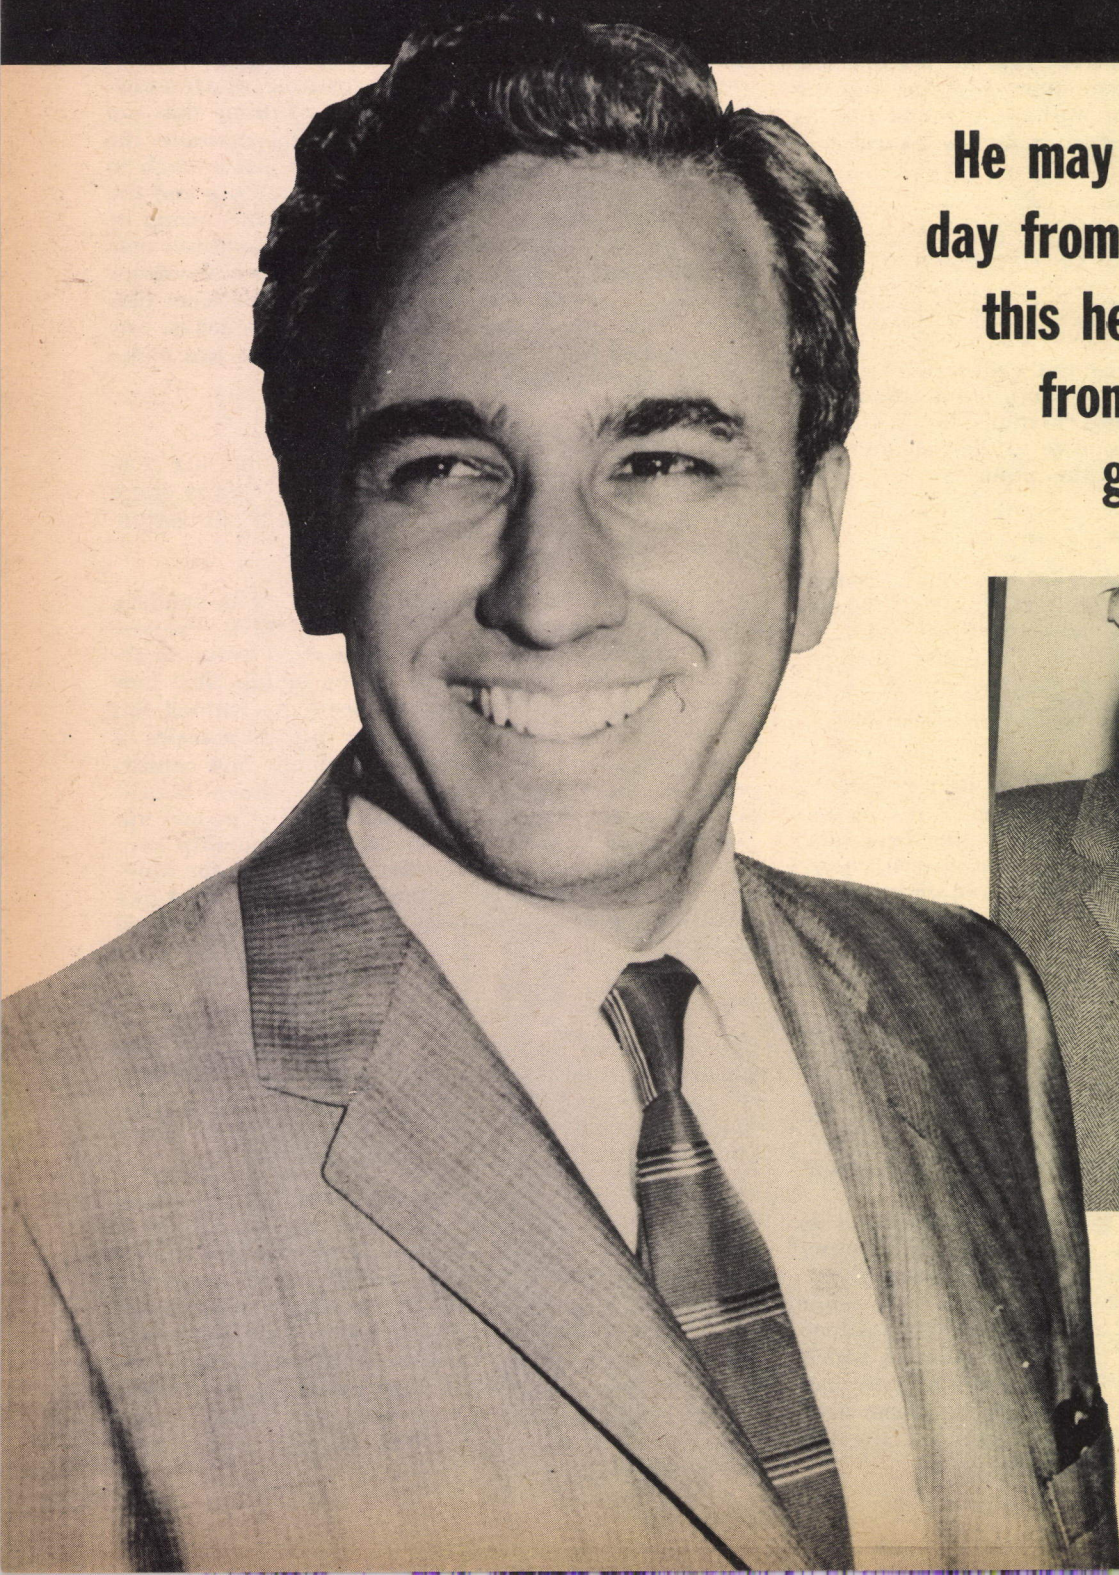

A—That's a matter of opinion, M. L. but Tennessee Williams' files may help you. They show that three of the actresses who played Blanche DuBoise in Streetcar reacted differently when the blackout cue missed during the rape scene, where the stage was supposed to darken immediately. When it didn't Jessica Tandy adlibbed to Brando, "Take me in the next room and lock the door; Uta Hagen kept muttering four letter words until the lights went out, and Judith Evelyn simply told the audience "There's supposed to be a blackout now."—Ed.

INSIDE CAFE SOCIETY

THE VERY PRIVATE LIFE OF Huntington Hartford

by KEVIN FLAHERTY

He may get $16,000 a day from the A & P but this heir gets the air from the gorgeous gals of Gotham.

Hunts was never very lucky with the ladies. Marjorie, his 2nd wife sued him for 25 million, got $385,000 plus $60 grand annually.

Though Hunts has been seen with oddles of adorables, according to intimates he's got the largest strike out record in cafe society. Above left he's shown with Mrs. Howard Hawks. On the right he's with Maria Toren at New York's Park Sheraton.

THE VERY PRIVATE life of Huntington Hartford could just as easily be titled, Lament For a Loser. And though it may seem absolutely ludicrous putting a "loser" tag on a guy with 50 million bucks and an income of better than $16,000 per day, he nevertheless deserves it.

Mr. Hartford, the strike-out king of the society league, has goofed at just about everything he's ever tried. He's been a bust in business, a pushover as a playboy and a horror as a husband (twice). He has, in his lifetime been literally surrounded by thousands of beautiful babes but, according to intimates, maintains a batting average just about equal to the size of his shoes.

Not His Cup Of Tea

Hartford was struck out with the bases loaded so many times that a friend, when questioned about a business venture the A & P heir was mixed up in, recently remarked, "Don't bet on old Huntington, he's the kind of a guy who couldn't get himself arrested in a raid."

Hunts, (so call him by his smart nick name) in case there is someone who doesn't know, is one of the owners of that great American institution known as the A & P. And, though he derives most of his income from it he hasn't done a thing for it in thirty years.

It was just after he graduated from Harvard that the kid who was born with a silver supermarket in his mouth, took a fling at learning the family business. It was a very brief fling as he quickly found out that messing with merchandising just wasn't his cup of Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea.

It was his first strike-out. But, adopting the attitude that one strike out doesn't make a summer, Hunts, with his pockets full of jingle and his head full of a healthy yen for the opposite sex, decided to become a playboy.

For the first year or so Hunts was strictly an in and outer as a bon vivant. He didn't break any records for strike outs but neither did he come to bat very often. The headwaiters at the El Morrocco and Stork got to know him by his first name and he was seen with an array of Hollywood beauties such as June Lang, Betty Hutton, Peggy Cummings and Arline

Judge but nothing ever seemed to happen. Hunts was the original no hits, no runs, no errors guy.

But then Grocery Go-getter again got into the game when he met a dancer named Mary Barton. With this heavenly hoofer he not only came to bat he made quite a hit. But his bingle turned out to be a bungle, indeed, because shortly after their bustup Mary caught Hunts off base and tossed a $250,000 paternity suit at him.

The A & P heir hollered foul but the umpire, a supreme court judge, ruled for the doll and soaked Hunts to the tune of a quarter of a million. Hartford may have had his innings with Mary but she won the ballgame.

This was quite a blow even for the A & P flash so, for a while Hunts was out of action. He just couldn't win. So why try. But then the thought hit him: If you can't beat 'em, join 'em. Maybe a wife was exactly what he needed to put him back in the win column.

So without giving the responsibilities of wedlock any more thought than he did an A & P teabag Hunts eloped with Mary Lee Epling, a girl he had frequently dated while he was at Harvard and she was a student at a fashionable Eastern finishing school.

And for almost a year the teamwork clicked. Hunts kept on the ball and they both kept each other happy. But then one night Mary met a suave gentleman at a dinner party in Hollywood. This smoothie turned out to be none other than Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. And, before anyone could say "Tyrus Raymond Cobb" Mary flipped over the film star and Hunts was once again out in left field with a catcher's mitt.

All Boy—No Play

The Tea Company Casanova had struck out again.

After the marital bustup Hartford returned to playing the pretties in Manhattan. But though he pitched a lot of woo at the wenches they just didn't go for his brand of balling it up. As far as they were concerned as a playboy the purveyor of palatables was all boy and no play.

During this barren period the Tea heir again took a fling at business and went to work as a reporter for the now defunct newspaper, PM. It should be said here that it was not entirely Hartford's fault that the

INSIDE RUSSIA

SEX IN RUSSIA:

How K Made It K^okje

by FRANCOIS DUPREZ

If it's a bed-and-broad deal you want stay away from the Soviet—they sneak their fun on the run.

EVERYBODY knows about the birds and the bees but what about the Russians?

Is it true that free-love parties are the leading state-sponsored sport for Kremlin kiddies, or can you believe the opposite-extreme rumors that Soviet cops shoot the love birds on the wing?

How do Ivan and Nonotchka go about it when they feel the urge to merge?

And how does the lonely tourist make out when he ogles Olga in Red Square?

To get the answers to these and other stimulating questions, INSIDE STORY sent a special correspondent behind the Iron Curtain to spy on the sextra-curricular activities of Soviet life. This is his first hand report:

Even in Russia, love will find a way. But the way is no primrose path for the guys and dolls of Kremlin land. A normal love life is as difficult to establish as a capitalistic enterprise.

Contrary to the popular belief held by the western world, free love is not part of the Marxist theory, sex orgies are not included in any five year plan. The Young Pioneers and other commie youth groups are not encouraged to mingle sexually, as Hitler's children were. Instead of trying to boost the extra-marital birth rate, the Krushchev regime is remarkably prudish.

Lovebirds Don't Fly Very High

But no purge can submerge the most basic urge, and government frowns are ignored when cupid smiles.

In Moscow the boys and girls get together in such public spots as taxis and parks. Gorki Park, virtually in the shadow of the Kremlin, is a favorite hunting ground for Moscovite wolves. Any night after midnight, and often much earlier, romantic couples can be seen proving that a lovebird in the bush is worth two in the hand. Singly and in twos and threes, the girls sit expectantly on park benches while the young men stroll by and survey the only luxury merchandise they can still afford.

When a choice is made and an agreement reached, off they go to the park lanes and dimly lit paths off the main promenade.

In the pre-dawn hours, the park grounds frequently are as busy as the famed Moscow subway stations at the rush hour.. Police patrols pass through frequently, but all they ask is, "Please keep off the flowers."

Gorki Park, and others like it, provides a romance rendezvous not only for the prostitutes and their customers, amateur amour-ettes and teen-age triflers, but also for properly engaged couples who want to be alone but can't.

Privacy is at a premium in Moscow and other Soviet cities. Most young people live with their families or room with other families in crowded apartments. New apartment buildings are going up all over the place, but the housing shortage is still acute. It's not unusual to find eight and ten persons sharing two or three rooms.

There are no cheap hotels or rooming houses in Moscow that cater to unmarried couples. Every stranger appearing at a hotel desk must show his passport and identification papers, which are promptly passed on to the police.

When the INSIDE STORY reporter found a cutie who was ready willing and able he suggested they find a convenient lodging for the night. Shaking her head emphatically, she replied, "Moscow is not New York."

Motorized mecca for Moscow's more prosperous bachelors is the fleet of taxicabs that prowl the broad avenues after dark. In assembly line style, a constant stream of cabs flows slowly past the side of the Grand Hotel, a block from Red Square, and lonesome males line the curb to see what the drivers are promoting besides a 10-ruble fare.

Dance halls are common in Russia but transient hotels and motels are non-existent.

Many of the cabs carry female passengers, looking for company on their crosstown ride. Most of these circuit riders are short, squat and unlovely, but their patrons aren't choosy. The girls charge a flat 100-ruble fee for their service ($10.00 at tourist exchange rates.) But this is no bed-and-broad deal. The beds are unavailable.

It is more of a rock-and-roll arrangement, with the deal consummated in the back of the cab while careening around corners and through dark streets. This blitzkreig approach to C.O.D. romance has earned the participants the title of "Khrushchev's Rough Riders."

If the lovelorn male doesn't want to wait in line for a taxi dancer, he has only to take a nocturnal stroll along Gorki Street, Moscow's Fifth Avenue. There the merchandise, both in the shop windows and on the hoof is more desirable than that offered by the cabbies.

The language barrier is the smallest hurdle. Most educated Russian girls are multi-lingual, speaking some English, French or German in addition to their native tongue. And the language of love is universal.

The fear of foreigners, especially of Americans, often is overcome by curiosity. Despite what party propagandists say, Russian girls want to learn for themselves about "capitalists" and other visitors from outside their restricted world.

It is almost as easy to find a pretty, passionate girlfriend, with no price tag on her favors, as it is to contact a professional prostitute. And the companionship is much more worthwhile. But neither type is as readily available as her counterparts in any American city.

In Russia good looking dolls are in abundance but a guy can get into a lot of trouble if he's caught in a hotel with one.

Once the girl is found and the language difficulties overcome, Cupid runs smack into security agents and hotel regulations—and here is where the commies separate the men from the boys. Plainclothes policemen no longer tail the average tourist about the streets—but a uniformed cop stands before every tourist hotel and a plainclothes detective prowls within.

Hotel Rooms Are Not For Hustlers

The girl who is willing to take a chance on romance under these conditions risks more than her reputation. She risks a quiz session with the cops, official censure, loss of a job, even a possible prison term for cavorting with capitalistic foreigners.

Surprisingly, many Russian girls are willing to take these tremendous risks for nothing more than an evening's entertainment to brighten the drabness of daily routine.

First step is to get the Moscovite maiden past the frigid frowns of the outside cop (who may ask for her identification papers), the doorman and the front desk. Next step is to steer her past the female porter who sits in every hotel hall, keeping one eye on the elevator, the other on the stairs. No one comes or goes without the porter's notice. Room keys must be left at the porter's desk while the guest is away.

Unattached men are forbidden female companionship in their hotel rooms, especially after dark. Sometimes, but not often, the hall porter can be circumvented. But the odds on this happening are much better in the afternoon. A matinee performance beats a night show in Russia.

When and if the tourist manages to smuggle a girl into his boudoir, he usually feels he can relax. But the girls know better.

"Don't speak my name in your room," they will plead.

They realize every tourist hotel is wiretapped from lobby to roof. A microphone may be anywhere—in the radio or the TV set, behind the drapes, even attached to the bedsprings to pick up on the most private conversations. Only the plushiest hotels—like the Sovietskaya, which caters to commie bigshots—boast television in the rooms but a TV set makes an ideal place for hiding a mike. So does the commonplace bedside lamp.

Camera Records Boudoir Acrobatics

If the visitor is a genuine V.I.P., he may find a large mirror behind his bed, or directly across the room. All well and good for the do-it-yourself hobbyist who wants to watch what he's doing but this mirror sees more than reflections. It's an old trick—mirror on one side, window on the other. Behind it, cameramen may be lurking to record tender bedroom scenes.

In this fashion, potential blackmail material is obtained without the services of a professional Mata Hari and proof is gathered for any future purge trial.

However, when needed, the voluptuous she-spy is still around. Intourist, the Government tourist bureau employs a small stable of them in addition to the run-of-the-mill guides and interpreters.

Darryl has had many a hit on the screen but Juliette gave him his first on the jaw.

THE STAR WHO SLUGGED HER WAY OUT OF STARDOM

by DONALD O'SEAN

PUGLISTS GET PAID for throwing punches. Actors and actresses do not. But outside of the prize ring Hollywood notables have probably thrown more punches than people of all other professions combined.

Frank Sinatra was always handy with his hands. Bob Mitchum has in his time, shown more muscle than Charles Atlas, and Tom Neal and Franchot Tone had as many battles over Barbara Payton as Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale had over the middle-weight championship.

On the distaff side Shelley Winters has had her share of donnybrooks and Bette Davis, Joan Crawford and Anna Magnani were never gals to back off in an argument.

But none of them, male or female, ever had the audacity—or should we say the stupidity—to belt anyone even remotely concerned with making out their paychecks.

Recently, however, in Paris one of the most costly wallops ever thrown was recorded on Celluloid City's Seismograph when Juliette Greco, the beatnick that was built into a star by Darryl F. Zanuck, hauled off and hurled a haymaker right to her benefactor's jaw.

Maybe old Darryl deserved it, maybe he didn't. And maybe the whole thing would have gone unnoticed if the Greco Gamin hadn't added insult to injury by making this statement to reporters: "Ask Darryl Zanuck what the sound of my fist landing on the side of his jaw sounds like. Darryl was an old man who didn't want to share me."

As if the punch wasn't enough, she had to call him an "old man".

"For the past four years," she went on, "I was uprooted, an object without a soul operated by remote control. I was making movies in a foreign language for foreign audiences. I had to get out of this golden, asphyxiating, absurd marry-around."

And get out of it she did. No one knows just how many brass rings she garnered while riding that golden carousel but one thing is certain: None of them will ever get her another free ride.

Where Greco is concerned, Zanuck's had it. She didn't break the jaw but she sure busted the relationship. ■■

"WOMEN SCARE ME—they really scare the hell out of me!"

The above mouthful of hogwash was uttered by none other than the handsome hunk of leading man, Rock Hudson. We call it hogwash because if he was spouting anything but when he said it then he's one guy who's been flying in the face of disaster ever since he gave up delivering dry food in a truck to take up delivering dry lines in a theatre.

If there's anything that paves Rocky's rocky road to stardom, it's dames. Oodles and oodles of them. So many oodles, in fact, that it would take an IBM computer to count the cuties he's cut up with.

Henry Willson, the agent who discovered this fellow with a "phobia for females", didn't know it then, but when he dubbed Roy Sherer Fitzgerald Rock he wasn't only naming him, he was describing him. Because where the "fearful" fair sex is concerned, Hudson has been just that, a rock since he burst upon the Hollywood scene. He was as hard as a rock in his marriage to Phyllis Gates, the gal he kicked out after just one year of wedded bliss. He's been as immovable as a rock in regards to a second marriage—he just isn't having any. And he's as solid as a rock when it comes to a filly named Marilyn Maxwell, a doll with whom the Hudson hulk is now making it for the second time around but still hasn't popped that all important question.

He Vants To Be Alone

To hear the Hollywood hacks tell it Hudson is a guy who lives a lonesome existence in a fabulous beach house on Lido Isle. According to his press agents he surrounds his life with secrecy. He goes nowhere. He sees no one. He does nothing. Every day in every way they make him sound like a cheap imitation of Greta Garbo, a gal who really wanted to be alone—and proved it.

Rocky claims he doesn't want this sore of ballyhoo. But any handsome man who makes "kooky" statements like "Women scare the hell out of me," is certainly asking for it. And it was probably thoughtless (?) mouthing off like this that led one female columnist to tag Rocky, 'The handsome hunk of her-

Strange Case of ROCK HUDSON

mit". (Ouch)

Calling Rocky a hermit is like calling King Kong a chimpanzee. It just ain't so.

Rock, as we mentioned before has been married once. Has been close to marriage on a number of occasions and has been romantically linked with dolls like Piper Laurie, Joyce Holden, Lori Nelson, Betty Abbott, Ann Blyth, Linda Cristal, Erika Carlson and scores of others. Dolls like these may have scared the average guy but they didn't even make The Rock nervous.

To take them chronologically—and how close can you take a preponderance of pigeons like this but chrnolgically—we begin with Vera-Ellen, the first of a long line of "scares" for the guy with that rare disease known as fillyphobia.

The First Of Many

They met when she was at the height of stardom and Rocky was just another handsome face in a long line of X, Y and Z films. For a while the romance sizzled but then, just as quickly as it had started, the flame petered out. Today, when asked about the romance, Rock would like to have people think that Vera Ellen threw him over because he was an unknown whiles he was a star. But, in an interview with Hedda Hopper the guy who claims to be chicken-hearted with the chicks said, when asked why he never proposed, "I just couldn't make up my mind."

That doesn't sound much like a guy who was jilted. And even less like a "fraidy cat" with the women.

After the Vera Ellen "scare" Rocky flitted about filmville's flesh pots with Piper Laurie, then Joyce Holden.

He Dug The Doll

Somewhere around this time the curly headed Casanova met torrid torsoed Marilyn Maxwell. Now if any gal could scare a guy Marilyn'd be the gal to do it. But she didn't faze Rock in the least. He just gritted his teeth, bore right in and asked for a date. He got it.

But he couldn't have made much of an impression because it was shortly after their tete-a-tete that Marilyn married Andy McIntyre, the second of her three hubbies.

The feeling, however, was not mutual. Rock was taken by Marilyn's apparent charms as what American boy wouldn't be. He dug the doll. But it was just about then that his career was taking a turn for the better and demanded every minute of his time.

INSIDE AMERICA

Even J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation has commented that highway sin is getting worse and worse. As Mr. Hoover said in a public pronouncement not long ago:

"There is today a new home of disease, bribery, corruption, crookedness, rape, white slavery, camouflaged brothels and murder. Hence the tense order that goes out daily to law enforcement agencies when criminals are on the loose. 'Keep close watch on motels and tourist camps.'"

UNCLE TOMCAT'S CABIN

HOT MATTRESS MOTELS

ARE BOOMING AGAIN

Instead of serving large portions of sex along with sleeping facilities some of these wheeling and dealing motel owners should be serving time.

By CURTISS FIELD

EVER SINCE the advent of motels, these roadside rests have been used for everything from private hospitals for abortionists, through private dope parlors for the cat with the monkey on his back, to private brothels for the guy just seeking a fast fling with a filly.

Certainly this comes as no surprise to anyone who has learned about the birds and the bees but recently the people of Las Vegas were shocked when the F.B.I. issued a warning to Nevada's Governor Charles Russell and Attorney General Harvey Dickerson that a motel on the outskirts of town was operating as a high class house of ill-repute where the illicit was sold only to the elite.

The owners didn't even try to disguise the operation. Anyone looking for just plain lodging for the night was turned away. The joint catered to nothing but the higher echelon of finance. A customer had to have a good recommendation and a good bank account to crash.

Roadside Red Lighteries

Twenty-three glamorous gals ran the bordello and were in attendance at all times. It cost twenty-five bucks to get a look at them in action. From there the prices soared. Anything a guy couldn't afford to buy he wasn't allowed to touch. Getting near these delectable dough-girls cost anywhere from a hundred bucks, up.

The warning from the G-Men sent the Nevada State Police into action and in less time than it takes to say A House Is Not A Home, all twenty-three play-for-pay pretties were pitched into the pokey.

The raid squelched prostitution in the area and it has remained that way largely due to the gambling laws of the state that demand that motels, hotels, tourist cabins, etc., be inspected by the gendarmerie regularly. What they're looking for is illicit gambling. What they usually find is illicit sex.

In St. Louis, on the floor of a nearby tourist cabin, the police found the nude body of a 22-year-old lady of the night. She had been strangled with the cord of an electric iron, suffocated with a scarf knotted tightly over her mouth and nose, stabbed in the chest with a pen knife and her throat was slashed by a broken coke bottle.

They Cater To Capers

This was the seventh such sex murder they had come upon in the last six months. All of them followed the same pattern.

The police swung into action. They covered the motels of the area like a blanket and discovered that the average time spent at these roadside red lighteries by a "motoring" couple who had registered came to a little over a half hour. They also found that there were many highway joy joints in the area that went so far as to demand that patrons vacate the premises within an hour.

Many arrests were made and within a short time the police of St. Louis, like the police of Las Vegas, had cleaned their city.

But what about the rest of the country? Must there be gambling or sex murders before the police get smart and ferret out the filth? Of the 52,000 motels operated in this country there is no doubt that the majority of them are legitimate businesses run by legitimate business men. But what about the rest? What about the crimes committed in motels in just the last two years alone? Crimes that include prostitution, rape, seduction, perversion, incest, homosexuality, sodomy, degeneracy, drug peddling, drunkenness, felonious assault, juvenile delinquency, suicide, abortion and murder.

A raid on an eastern motel disclosed that room was being used as a base of operation for the lewd picture racket. Below are some of the confiscated pix. (left) Tourist cabins can usually be had with or without built in babes.

In doing a little investigation on my own through many of the eastern and midwestern states, I found that the large million-dollar motels on the main highways are usually pretty much on the up and up. The initial investment is so high that the owners can't afford a run-in with the police. Even a suspension of their license would put them out of business. But even these honest businessmen can't screen all the couples that take advantage of their facilities daily.

Personal Pantie Raid

Asking for a marriage license is ridiculous, sometimes downright insulting. And wedding rings that look as good as gold can be purchased at the local Woolworth's. Even these big operations — ostensibly legitimate — get their share of filth.

But off the main roads, on the secondary highways, on the roads leading to resort towns and in and out of big cities the tomcat cabins run full blast.

The less lawless of these cater to the businessman who wants to "get to know" his secretary better or to the college student who is conducting his own personal pantie raid. The gal he's conducting it on usually registers as his misses.

One promoter runs a restaurant along with his tourist trap. The food is by no means fit for a gourmet but the waitresses are the best coiffed, best dressed, best looking dolls the area can provide. Needless to say as hash slingers they leave a lot to be desired but should you look like you're looking for a lass you'll be "waited on" in grand style. Of course the price of the "dessert" is put on your check.

Another enterprising entrepreneur employs a battery of maids that would make the Latin Quarter chorus line look like a group of spinster aunts. These "maids" cater to the monied clientele. For those not-so-monied, this motel czar, who doesn't miss a trick, has peepholes through which the guy who can't afford the dolls can get his jollies.

Some of these operations are run by the motel owners themselves, in others the wheeler and dealer with the deed merely gets a kickback. In one well populated midwestern city a white slaver runs a stable of call girls in the middle of town. When a gal gets a "ring" from a customer, the motel is alerted and a room is reserved.

The setup is arranged so the guy gets there first. If he looks okay he gets his room, he gets his doll, and the motel owner gets a cut of the take. If, however, the Joe even slightly resembles a cop the rendezvous is cancelled and nobody is the wiser.

The owner of the joint claims to know nothing about the hanky-panky. As far as he is concerned his motel was nothing but a convenience. Certainly not a connection.

It's a great gimmick and according to the police in the city, it's almost foolproof. They've been trying to bust it up for sometime now.

In other crackdowns, police have been more successful. New York's Assistant District Attorney Leslie Lieber broke a racket run by a motel man who had a record of vice arrests as long as the Lincoln Tunnel. When caught he was operating several auto rests doing a healthy business supplying sweet young things to tired motorists at twenty bucks a go.

In Los Angeles Detectives Russel K. Norris and Robert Byron busted a similar but more elaborate setup run by a former Hollywood talent scout. He didn't own a motor court but he did own a real wild stable of $50.00 a night call girls that operated in some of the plushiest motels on the west coast.

The detectives knew about this monkey business for some time but couldn't get the necessary proof. They played it cozy. Finally after a steady surveillance at a fashionable Hollywood highway hotel they nabbed a starlet in an act that would have made even Bacchus blush. Along with her they confiscated a little black book that listed the names of hundreds of Hollywood big shots and included all the motels that were "O.K." to use.

A New Wrinkle

But big time operators aren't the only ones who sell sex along with sleeping accommodations. In the Southern Hills I pulled into a roadside rest really looking for a place to lay my weary head. The cabins looked clean and, since I'd seen cars parked there with out-of-state licenses, I figured this to be strictly an up and up business establishment.

I signed the register and the toothpick chewing owner assigned me to a cabin. My bedtime preparations were interrupted by a knock on the door. I opened it and standing on my door step was a lovely southern belle with an armful of linen.

"Change your sheets, sir?" she asked sweetly.

"I haven't even used them yet," was my reply, "so they're certainly not dirty. Why they're not even wrinkled."

"For a small fee we could wrinkle them together," said she with a wink, "just you and me. Now are you sure you don't want sheets?"

It was the neatest and the newest "wrinkle" in the business I'd run into. I was about to ask her in and question her about the operation but I know I'd get nowhere. I might even get myself in trouble. So, I politely refused, told her I'd use the sheets I had and sent her on her way. But I couldn't help but wonder how many sheets she changes nightly.

For the more enterprising chippie who doesn't care to take the $10 or $20 a pop route to prosperity there's the extortion racket. This is usually pulled in a motel that's near a state line and works something like this.

The Mann Act's Murder

The gal finds herself a diner or a road-side inn near a state boundary and makes that her base of operation. She hangs around the bar or counter and when some well-dressed, well-heeled stranger offers to buy her a drink or a hamburger, she accepts. (These dolls make it their business to be able to spot a lad with a loaded wallet. They rarely miss.)

Since she knows that no guy spends a dime on a dame without wanting something in return she waits for the inevitable proposition. At first the cutie coyly refuses. But, as the evening wears on and the gentleman's patience starts to wear thin, she accepts. And she just happens to know a motel in the area where they can go. Said motel is naturally just across the state line. But the boyfriend doesn't know that and, what's more, she's got him so worked up at this point that he wouldn't care if he had to go to the moon for a bed.

Once in the motel the sucker starts to strip for action and when he's down to the suit he was born in a phoney cop barges in, charges him with violation of the Mann Act — the law that says you do time, if in the process of making time, you transport a filly across a state line — and starts to slap the handcuffs on him.

The guy does a lot of fast talking,

M.M. Uncensored*

*In case you didn't recognize her from the back here are the two fabulous fronts of Marilyn Monroe—one: biologic; the other: biographic.

The Story You've Never Been Told Before

by MARK SHULER

DURING the past few months at least two full-length paperback biographies of the great Hollywood sex symbol, Marilyn Monroe, have appeared. Each purports to reveal "hitherto unknown facts" about the world's most voluptuous body. Actually, each warms over and dishes up the same old stale tripe spoon-fed to the public for the past ten years by Hollywood press agents—and by MM herself.

In the course of those years a Marilyn Monroe legend has been created that portrays her as a cross between Cinderella and Little Orphan Annie. By now the lurid details of her alleged childhood are familiar to practically everyone on the face of the earth able to read a newspaper or magazine:

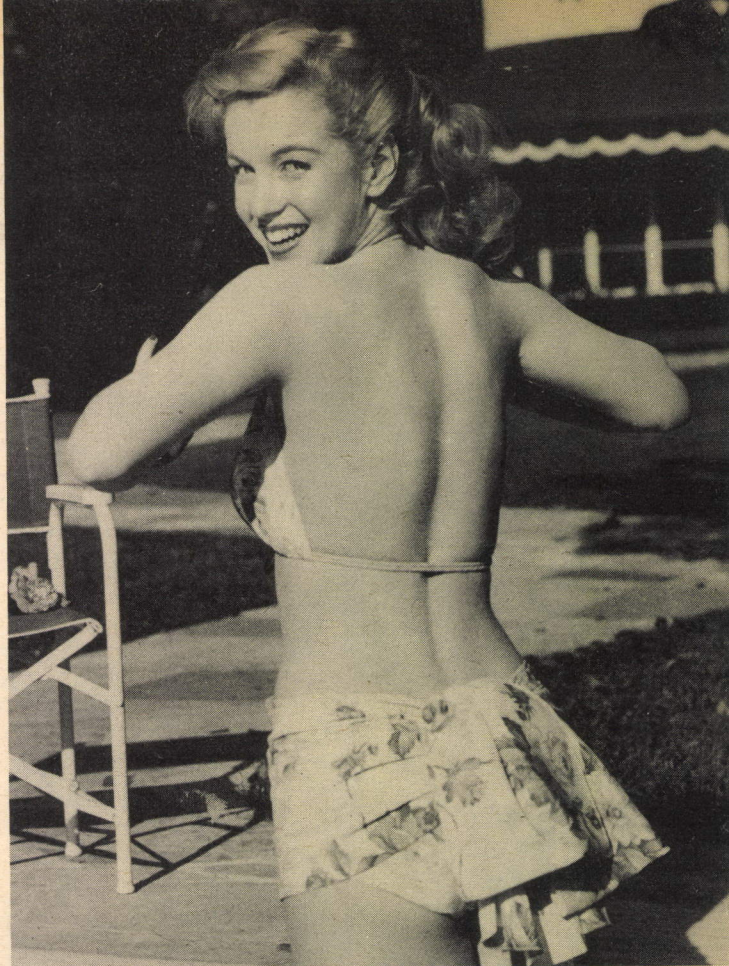

She is an illegitimate child whose parents died while she was still a baby;

She spent the first 16 years of her life in an orphan asylum and a dozen different foster-homes where, for the most part, she was abused, neglected, and treated like a slave;

When she was 2, a demented neighbor tried to smother her to death with a pillow;

When she was 6 (or 8 or 11, according to various versions) she was raped by a depraved old man.

MM fiction: "When I was 11 years old I was raped."
Fact: Reliable evidence refutes this act of depravity.

MM fiction: "When I was two a neighbor tried to smother me. Fact: Never happened says her foster parents.

When she was 16 she married a man she did not love as the only out from a life of misery and drudgery;

In spite of fame and fortune, she is still basically a shy, lonely little girl desperately seeking affection and emotional security—and unable to find it.

Unfortunately this oft-told tale is about 90 percent fiction, and about 10 percent fact. Investigators who have dug into Marilyn Monroe's background agree that she is a far greater actress in real life than on the screen.

Here for the first time is the full INSIDE STORY about Marilyn Monroe's early life—a story no other magazine to date has dared to print.

The record shows that she was born Norma Jeane Baker on June 1, 1926 at Los Angeles General Hospital. Her mother, Gladys Monroe Baker, was a film cutter at RKO studios—and unmarried. According to Marilyn, she is "a descendent of President James Monroe". This is a typical bit of historical exaggeration.

For a long time after she became famous, Marilyn maintained that she was an orphan; both her mother and father, she said, were dead.

About eight years ago an enterprising reporter discovered that Gladys Baker was still alive—and a patient in a State mental hospital. Confronted with this fact, MM gracefully acknowledged her "error". At the urging of 20th Century-Fox (with whom she had a contract at the time) she arranged to have her mother moved to a private institution and to foot the bill for her keep.

MM fiction: "My mom and dad died while I was a baby."
Fact: Marilyn's mom and dad are still very much alive.

In a statement obviously prepared for her by studio publicity agents, she told the press:

"Unknown to me as a child, my mother spent many years as an invalid in a State hospital. I was raised in a series of foster homes arranged by a guardian through the County of Los Angeles, and I spent more than a year in the Los Angeles Orphans' Home. I haven't known my mother intimately but since I have become an adult and am able to help her, I have contacted her. I am helping her and want to continue to help her when she needs me."

As we shall soon see, this is scarcely the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

MARILYN has always insisted that she never knew her father, "a man named Mortenson". He allegedly was killed in a motorcycle accident before she was born.

The fact is, her father is still very much alive and in southern California. MM knows who he is, and where he is. According to an intimate friend she once tried to contact him, but he refused to see her. He sent word that he is happily married now and has a family, doesn't care to rake up the past.

Before Norma Jeane was 3, the legend goes, her mother had a nervous breakdown and was put away in a State mental hospital. The courts first placed the child in a foster home with a family of "religious fanatics" who lived in a semi-slum on the outskirts of Los Angeles. They were very strict, and treated her badly. She lived with them for three years.

During the next three years she was shunted from one foster-home to another—ten in all! She was cruelly abused, "constantly blamed for the misdeeds and misbehavior of other kids". In one place she was falsely accused—and punished—for tearing a dress; in another, for stealing a pearl necklace. On still another occasion, she vividly recalls, a visitor gave her 50 cents. Her foster-parents at the time took the money away from her, saying: "You dirtied your clothes!"

It was in one of these foster-homers that 8-year-old Norma Jeane allegedly was raped by a boarder, "an elderly accountant". He lured her into his room, locked the door. According to the biography.

"HE asked the little girl to sit on his lap. She did. Then he told her they would play a game. The game needs no further description. It was one of the most horrible episodes in the young life of Norma Jeane Baker.

"When the depraved boarder finally released the helpless and terrified little girl from his room, she ran to her foster mother and reported the outrage. But the woman showed neither sympathy nor concern; instead, she slapped Norma Jeane and told her to keep her mouth shut."

There is reliable evidence that this incident never happened—that like so many other appalling details of her early life, it is a figment of Marilyn's fertile imagination.

In 1956, when Time magazine decided to do a cover story on Marilyn Monroe, it assigned veteran reporter Ezra Goodman to make an exhaustive investigation of her background. He did. Among the people in her past whom he interviewed were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bolender of Hawthorne (a suburb of Los Angeles)—the "deeply religious" couple with whom she lived just after her mother was committed to the mental institution.

Their story directly contradicted that told by MM.

MRS. Bolender, it turned out, was an old friend of Gladys Baker. Norma Jeane lived in their home from the time she was born until well past the age of 8. Her mother lived there too. The child was well taken care of, always nicely dressed. Her mother paid for their board until 1934—when she actually had her nervous breakdown and was put away in Norwalk hospital.

Norma Jeane Baker went directly from their house to the Los Angeles Orphan Home.

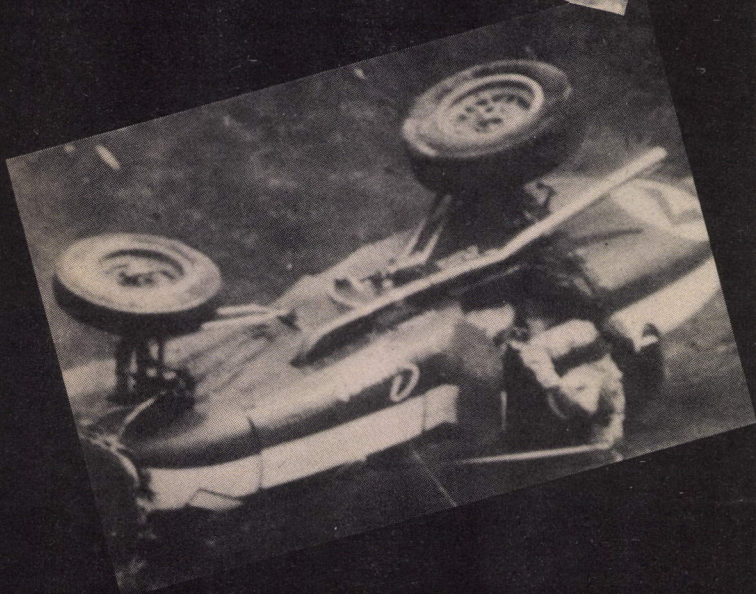

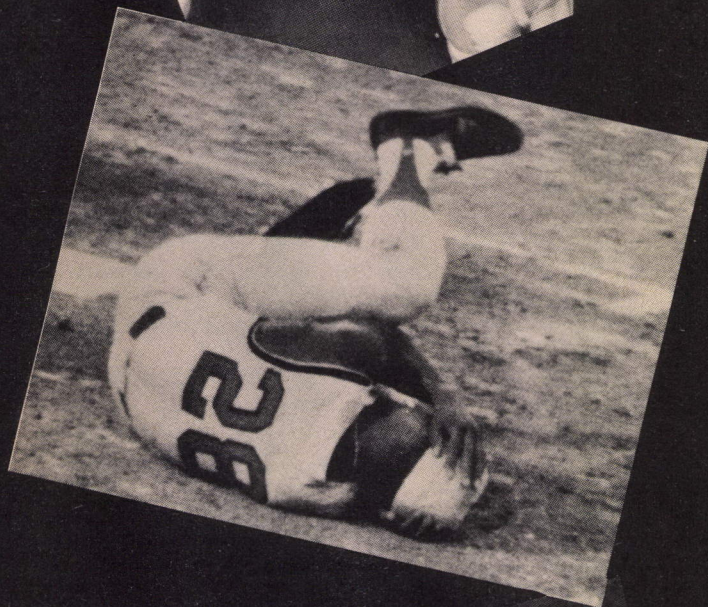

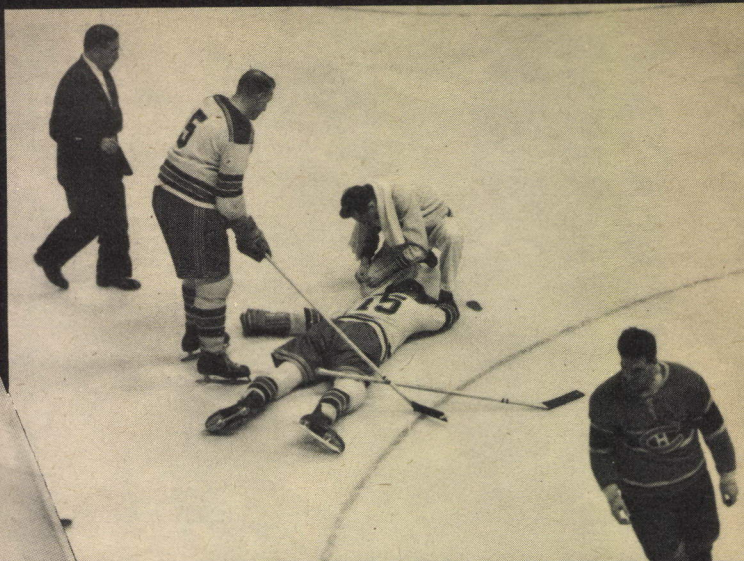

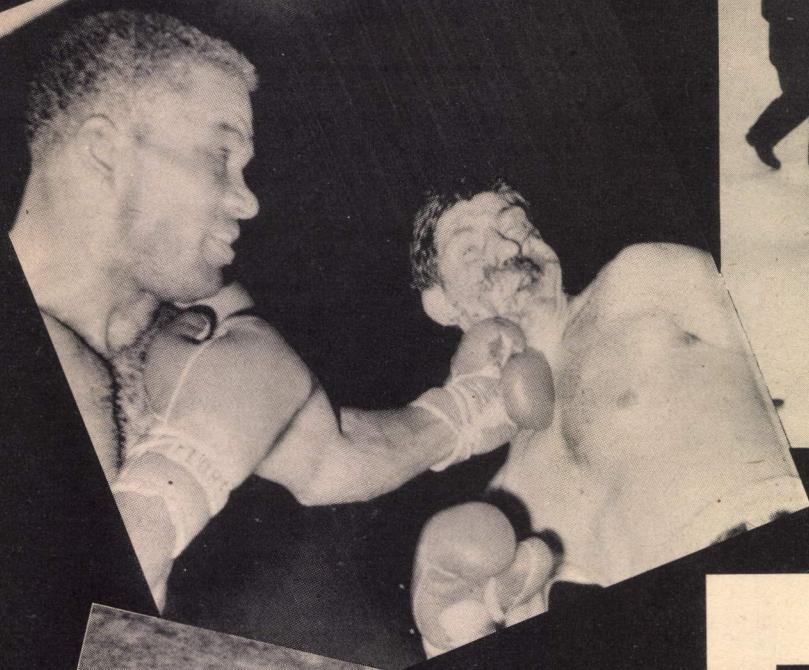

The Bolenders knew nothing about the alleged pillow-smothering incident. "I don't know where those stories about her staying in 12 foster homes came from," Mrs. Bolender said. And the alleged rape apparently was fabricated out of thin air.

Mrs. Bolender also asserted that a few years before, when Mrs. Baker was staying with her on leave from the hospital, she telephoned Marilyn Monroe and suggested that she come see her mother. "But she never did."

Goodman sent this information along to Time—along with a mass of other research debunking the Marilyn Monroe mythical past. He informed his editors:

"Most of the highly publicized Marilyn Monroe legend about her family background and upbringing has been revealed as nothing more than legend. There are grounds for being skeptical about a good many other aspects of the Monroe story."

skull and spine were fractured. He died two days later of internal injuries.

There is no country in the world where competitive sports attracts such enormous audiences as in the United States. And in no other country of the world do these sports take so appalling a toll in crippling injury and death.

620 Football Fatalities

They are responsible for hundreds of thousands of more or less serious injuries—and scores of deaths—each year.

Three of these sports—football, baseball and boxing—account for over 80 percent of these casualties.

According to the American Football Coaches Association, over a 25-year period football directly or indirectly has caused 620 fatalities. More than half of them (316, to be exact) were recorded in high-school football. The rest occurred in sandlot, professional, semi-pro and college football (the latter with a total of 61 deaths).

Head injuries caused more than half of these deaths. Ruptured internal organs occasioned another 30 per cent, with spine injuries running a close third. Indirect causes of death included heart failure, hernia, pneumonia and other infections.

During the past 10 years the authorities have taken a number of important measures to cut down on football injuries. Modern helmets are made of plastic or fibre, with a suspension lining of foam plastic which tends to absorb shock and reduce injuries to the skull and brain. The same principle has been adapted to body pads.

The Fearful Toll Mounts

Official football rules prevent players from using equipment which endangers the life of opponents. Among the banned materials are leather or other hard and unyielding substances in football uniforms, no matter how well covered or protected; metal projections, cleats which chip, etc.

Nevertheless the fearful toll continues.

This year, according to authoritative estimates, about 250,000 teenagers—one out of every four who engage in the sport—will get hurt playing football. About 80,000—8 out of each 100—will incur a serious

WHY THE VATICAN BOUNCED THE "DOC"

"MUZZLES ARE for dogs—not men." So says Dr. Ricardo Galeazzi-Lisi. He should know, because more than any man in modern times he's been on the spot for talking too much. It can happen again. However, this time, he's got a chance of getting a good reception.

It could be. For Dr. Galeazzi-Lisi is no fly-by-night quack. He's one of the top medical men in Europe. And there's a strong possibility that what he's saying could some day lead to cures for heart disease, circulatory disorders and many other widespread man-killers. There's an even stronger chance that his words might eventually double the life-span of human beings.

"What's he saying? It can be summed up in two words:

Royal Jelly!

These two words, spoken boldly at the Second Biogenetic Congress at Baden-Baden, Germany a few years ago, set off a medical H-bomb. Medical associations throughout the world denounced him. Drug companies proclaimed him a faker. And, although he'd been a faithful, practicing Catholic all his life, the Vatican excommunicated him.

The Vatican's punishment, the hardest for him to face, is the only one which may be justified. The Doc admits this. He did break one of their strictest rules. He did it with his eyes open. He did it, he says, because he felt he owed it to humanity to speak out.

The rule he broke was to reveal some of the treatment he gave Pope Pius XII during the Pope's illness. The Church takes no stand on his having administered Royal Jelly to the Prelate. They are neither for, nor against the medical use of the substance—although one high Church official, the Bishop Arceo of Mexico has spoken out most strongly in favor of it. It was he who shipped the royal jelly to the Vatican for the treatment of His Holiness.

However, the Church is most emphatically against any Vatican doctor making public the nature of treatment given an ailing Pontiff. This is why Dr. Galeazzi-Lisi was excommunicated. The action followed his statement to the medicos at Baden-Baden.

"I relied upon Royal Jelly without any hesitation," he said. He added that "it is a new curative hope against dreaded cancer."

This statement was confirmed by two other doctors who attended the Pope, Professor Paolucci, a world-renowned Italian surgeon, and Dr. Paul Niehans, a Swedish specialist in human cell structure.

His second statement, while pooh-poohed by the brass of the medical world, was taken seriously by a few dedicated cancer researchers who studied his results and are carrying on his work with experiments of their own. They're cautious about jumping to conclusions, but they all agree that Dr. Galeazzi-Lisi's statement was well-founded.

Meanwhile, experiments at the University of Miami have brought forth a carefully-worded statement that Royal Jelly "has the curious power of prolonging life." Experiments with it at Cornell University are said to have resulted in almost tripling the life-span of the common fruit fly. And one Midwest hospital which treated arthritis patients with the substance reported "startling results."

Just what is Royal Jelly? Why are medical associations and drug companies so dead-set against it? Why are they trying to hush up the amazing results Dr. Galeazzi-Lisi reported in his treatment of Pope Pius?

It is a substance produced by bees to feed their young. Three days after birth, it is dropped from the diet of all but the queen bee. Following this, the queen bee grows at a fantastically faster rate than does the ordinary bee who does not receive royal jelly.

The richest known source of Pantothenic Acid, one of the B-complex vitamins, Royal Jelly has been found most useful in treating ulcers, diabetes, hepatitis and many other diseases. It also may contain various hormones and the so-called fertility vitamin E. These have not been isolated yet, but either they, or some unknown property may be responsible for the remarkable results shown in building sex potency. This unknown may also account for the substance's effect on cancerous cells.

The medical associations object to Royal Jelly because it is outside their so-called "scientific" approach to treating ailments. Its properties were originally discovered by bee-keepers. Despite the fact that many individual doctors have studied its properties and vouched for them, the medical profession as a whole can't seem to face up to a medical discovery that didn't originate within its ranks.

The drug companies have a different reason for beefing. If Royal Jelly does what Dr. Galeazzi-Lisi and others claim it can, then many patent medicines may become obsolete. Thus only an occasional brave and independent drug manufacturer will chance packaging for the public anything like Royal Jelly.

The result is that there's a hush-hush program on against the substance. Earnest scientists like Dr. Galeazzi-Lisi are clamped down on. They're hounded professionally. They're sneered at publicly. And, in the Doc's case, as we've seen, they may even lose their chance at salvation.

That's the INSIDE STORY on the Doc they can't shut up; the INSIDE STORY on Royal Jelly, the substance that might some day save your life, lengthen it, or make it free of pain.

Hunts Hartford

paper went out of business, but he certainly didn't help matters. As one newsman who worked with Hunts recalls:

"He wasn't the best reporter the newspaper business ever saw but he was certainly the snootiest this side of Lucius Beebe. Hunts had his chauffeured limousine deliver him at a subway entrance near the office each day and would then walk through the subway station, so as to give fellow workers the idea that he was democratic enough to ride underground in the event he was observed.

"Then one day a photographer from a rival paper got a candid photo of Hunts allowing his chauffeur to help him on with his shoes in the car and it was about then that he decided the newspaper life was a little too mundane for his tastes."

Business And Babes

It was a pretty good try but the strike out king of the supermarkets again was sent to the showers.

After four years in the navy where he served honorably Huntington again returned to Cafe Society. But this time he took stock of himself. He was a guy who liked the dolls, but couldn't get to first base. He also liked business, but always wound up a loser. Maybe, if he combined both he could fatten his average.

Thus was born the Huntington Hartford Model Agency.

The idea may have come out of the blue but the Model Agency immediately went into the black. Huntington's face, however, turned a deep shade of red when he found that even though he literally had thousands of New York's loveliest lassies on his payroll he was still getting tossed out every time he came to bat. But you might say he batted .500 during this period as, even though he personally was a flop with the fillies, the model agency flourished.

Flushed with his success in business but befuddled by his personal flop Hunts took off for Hollywood where he set up a foundation to encourage talented artists, writers, sculptors and composers. And though the foundation took up a good deal of his day time hours his nights were a carbon copy of his life in New York. The only difference being that instead of going to El Morocco his dugout in Hollywood was Ciro's Restaurant the West Coast hangout for the smart set.

The Grocer Got The Gal

While having dinner there one night Hunts spied a willowy brunette cigarette girl named Marjorie Steel and absolutely flipped. Hunts never smoked a cigarette in his life but in less time than it takes a fast ball to reach home plate he bought out her entire stock of cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and panda bears and had himself a date for the following night.

The Grocery Boy was once again in the batter's box only this time he was determined to make a hit.

And with his kind of moolah, it wasn't too difficult. Impressed with the sincerity with which Marjorie spoke of her aspirations to become a genuinely good actress Hunts advanced her $2,000 with which to furnish an apartment, another $700 to buy a second hand car and finally hired her at $100-a-week for his film company.

He was pitching, Marjorie was catching and, on September 10th when he popped the question and she said "yes" Huntington took himself a walk down the middle aisle.

For a while everything was jake with the millionaire. But just as you can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear, neither could you make a home run hitter out of no hit Hartford.

Hunts had his marriage, he had his foundation, he had his model agency and he had his income from corner supermarkets all over the country. This would seem like enough to make any man a winner, but not old hitless Hartford.

Shortly after his marriage the A & P playboy again took up with a woman. This one, however, was a fictional doll named Jane Eyre. But fictional or not, the outcome was the same. And Old Janie really tossed Hartford a curve when he tried to adapt her for the London stage. With Marjorie playing the lead the offering was a tremendous flop and it cost Huntington a fortune. Even in the theatre he couldn't get a hit.

During this time Marjorie started needling Hunts about his lack of cultural pursuits. She persuaded him that instead of blowing his money on all sorts of wild schemes he should be spending it making the world a better place through encouraging fine painting and drama.

Hunts really tried. He bought a theatre in Hollywood, named it The Huntington Hartford and brought a number of Broadway shows to California in an effort to give Hollywood a large helping of culture. Whether Hollywood needed it or not wasn't important to Hunts. Marjorie wanted it and that was all that mattered. The theatre proved a boon to out of work actors and actresses. It also proved a helluva drain on the Hartford bank account.

"The Public Be Damned"

Where painting is concerned Hartford also followed Marjorie's advice and, to illustrate his complete metamorphosis from playboy to patron of the arts, he wrote a lengthy article for a national magazine entitled The Public Be Damned, in which he criticized John Q's taste in modern art unmercifully. This fling in the writing field wound up costing him $20,000, as that's the amount of newspaper space he had to buy to explain his views to the public. The same public he publicly damned in the article.

The Orange Pekoe playboy was coming to bat more often now but he was still whiffing.

He "Played" Away

And one of the biggest whiffs of his life was brought to light in October of 1960 when Marjorie haled the supermarket scion into a divorce court. According to her Hunts wasn't playing all his ball games on the home grounds. He was the visiting team at least six times, said Marjorie, and, what's more he had a hit each time. This free swinging, she thought, was worth at least 25 million bucks in alimony.

By this action Huntington may have proved that he didn't strike out all the time but he also proved that even when he got a hit he was always in a double play. Or should we have said double cross.

Marjorie didn't get her 25 million but she did walk off with a lump sum of $385,000 in addition to an annual retainer of $60,000. And that's a mighty nice average in any league.

Immediately after the divorce Huntington tossed in his glove for good. He was a washout with the wenches and he knew it. So, he folded his modelling agency. What good were delectable dolls if one couldn't dally with them. It was like owning a stadium and not being allowed on first base. No one knows exactly how much loot was lost on that enterprise but according to those in the know, it was considerable.

Since then Hunts has tried his hand at a number of things. Some successful, some not. On the credit side is a gallery of modern art which he presented to the City of New York. On the debit side is an island in the Bahamas which Hunts purchased to develop a vacation resort.

"We will expect people of quality from all walks of life," said he, "there will be no automobiles, no roulette wheels, no honky tonks on Hog Island. In that way, I hope we can create an atmosphere of cultural enjoyment that will complement the island's rare beauty and climate."

STRANGE FATE OF PROUD BEAUTY

A young man saw a young and beautiful woman run stark naked towards him pursued by two huge dogs and a hunter who cried out, "Keep away: She's got it coming." As he spoke the woman was brought to a stop

The hunter then told an incredible tale of frustrated passion and punishment. The young man drew back, his hair on end, and became a spectator to one of the most sadistic scenes ever described. This amazing story (only one of a 100) is told in full detail in Boccaccio's Decameron. This 540 page illustrated and unexpurgated Decameron is the book of which the critic Hutton has said, "Its effect upon us is the effect of life, which includes for its own good, things moral and immoral."

The island's rare beauty and climate are a reality. The resort still isn't.

Also on the debit side is the cafe which Hartford wanted to build smack in the middle of New York City's Central Park and donate to the city. When told of this idea, Robert Moses, then Parks Commissioner of Gotham said, "If Mr. Hartford wants to build a cafe let him buy his own park."

Thus, Huntington Hartford found that he not only couldn't make any money on his own, he couldn't even give it away.

Maybe this supermarket hotshot is best summed up in his own words, "... I am very analytical, very idealistic and basically somewhat immature in daily life ..."

We didn't say it, he did, and, after all, who should know the strike out king better than the strike out king himself.

injury such as concussion of the brain, a bone fracture or internal damage. About 36 will die of these injuries!

The INSIDE STORY is, most of these injuries are unnecessary and could be prevented!

Proper football equipment costs money. The American Football Coaches Association recommends a minimum expenditure of $100 per year to equip each player properly. Few high schools in this country follow this recommendation.

Defective Equipment

Even when they do, the new equipment is used only in scheduled games. Worn-out uniforms are passed on to the scrubs and used in practice. As a result, 4 out of 10 fatalities each year occur in practice sessions.

Face and dental damage account for more than half of all non-fatal football injuries. Many players each year are scarred for life by the broken cleats and exposed spikes of an opponent. Yet few high-school leagues require members to provide players with the more expensive but safer unbreakable cleats with special locking devices.

In 1953 a Kansas dental society fitted 540 boys with specially-moulded plastic mouthpieces designed to lessen the staggering number of broken teeth, broken jaws and other head injuries that occur each year. These boys completed the season without a single dental injury.

No Protection Provided

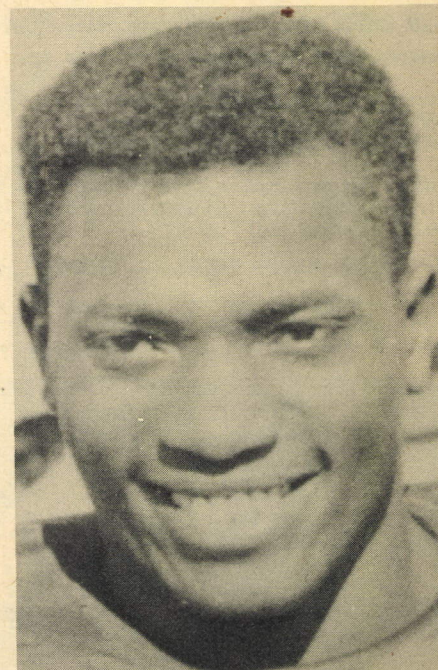

Yet today—almost 10 years later—fewer than one-fifth of the nation's schools provide players with these mouthpieces, or other facial protection.

Thus false economy in many schools not only fails to protect players against football accidents, but actually encourages these accidents!

The same is true of scholastic baseball.

More than 40 years ago, Ray Chapman shortstop for the Cleveland Indians, was hit in the head by a "submarine" pitch delivered by Carl Mays of the New York Yankees. He died without regaining consciousness.

No other fatality has been recorded on a professional baseball diamond since then. Many players have been hit by pitched balls, but the tough fibre helmet lined with a shock-absorbing cushion which they are required to wear when they come up to bat has saved them from serious injury or death.

Less than half the schools in this country provide their players with even this elementary protection.

Although exact statistics as to the number of deaths in sandlot, semi-pro, high-school and college baseball are not available, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company estimates that they are much higher than in any other sport. The reason: Baseball is more popular than any other sport.

19 Pros, 14 Amateurs Died

Nearly 100 years ago the Marquis of Queensbury formulated a series of rules to make boxing less deadly and more of a "gentleman's game". Yet scarcely a year goes by without some boxer being seriously injured or killed in the ring.

A study by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company reveals that in the 10 years between 1945 and 1954 no fewer than 19 pros and 14 amateurs died of boxing injuries—an average of more than 3 per year.

When a boxer dies of injuries received in the ring, the accident receives widespread publicity. For example, the death of George Flores after his bout with Roger Donaghue a few years ago. Less sensational but even more significant, perhaps, is the great number of leather-pushers who have been crippled or otherwise seriously injured for life as the result of the brutal beatings they have taken in the course of their ring careers.

Harold R. Barnes—for 35 years a boxing judge who officiated at over 6,000 bouts—including about 100 championship fights—has compiled a horror list of what this "sport" does to those who participate in it.

The list cites 206 professionals—many of them ex-champs—who are now totally or partially blind as the result of brutal punishment they absorbed. Another 150 are totally paralyzed. An additional 500 received such brain damage that they became insane and had to be confined to a mental hospital; committed suicide or murder; turned into criminals or narcotic addicts.

Boxing commissions in various states have taken a number of steps in an attempt to make the sport "safer".

In the past, several boxers were severely injured or killed when their head hit the hard canvas floor after a knockdown. Today the rules require a two-inch resilient pad of foam plastic and celotex beneath the platform canvas to absorb skull impact. Ring posts are placed outside the ropes, to further reduce the chances of injury.

Fighters are supposed to get a thorough medical checkup before each bout, and those who chronically absorb a beating lose their licenses. The mandatory count of eight after a knockdown, the neutral corner rule and the technical knockout ruling after three knockdowns in any round, all represent efforts to cut down the incidence of serious injury in the ring.

In spite of all such precautions and rules, however, boxers continue to get badly hurt and killed in the ring. Crooked managers and dirty fighters devise all kinds of dodges to get around the rules. Referees get careless, or wink at open violations of the rules. As popular sports columnist Dan Parker has observed:

Death Hovers Over The Ring

"There is a tendency to relax on boxing rules when there has been a spell without fatal accidents. Then comes the inevitable fruit of such carelessness, another fine young athlete is killed, and the rules are tightened up again. Death hovers over every sport arena in which there is tough body-to-body contact."

About three years ago Harold Barnes gave up his license as a boxing official and formed a "Let's Abolish Boxing Association". His one-man crusade against legalized mayhem, in the name of sports, since has attracted the support of many clergymen, businessmen, preachers and other prominent citizens—including a number of sports writers.

Barnes charges that boxing has fallen under the domination of gangster.

"Filth, Scum And Gangsterism"

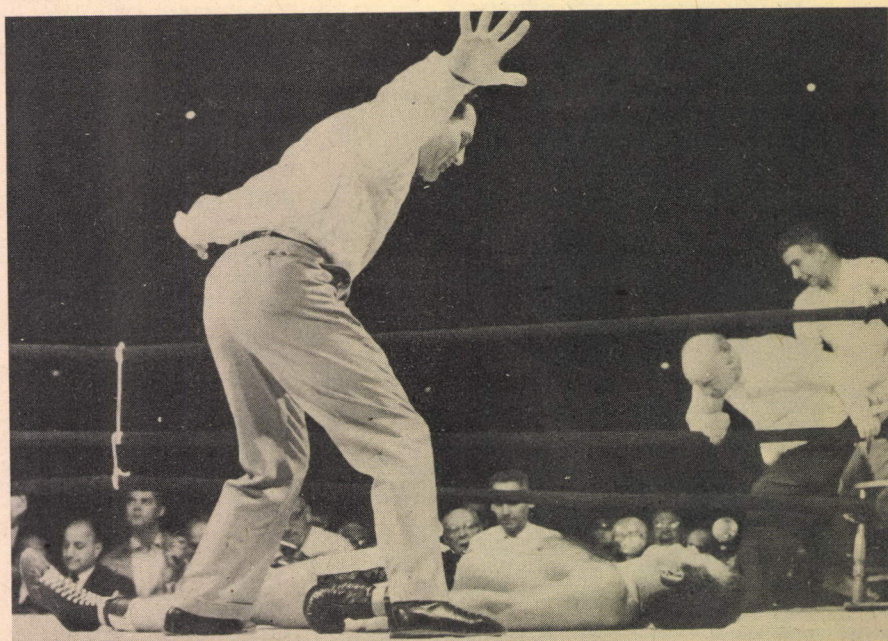

"Boxing cannot be successful without filth, scum and gansterism," he declares. "Ever since we have had boxing there has been scandal attached to it. The very nature of the spectacle attracts low society and those who want to make an easy buck without working for it, by letting someone else get their brains beaten out for it."

He says that TV boxing shows encourage gangsterism. "If it were not for the national televising of fights, there would be little money in the racket to attract the easy-buck guys," he asserts.

Yet the spectacle continues to attract millions of spectators each year. They flock to see one contestant batter another into unconsciousness, roar at the sight of gore, scream for a "kill". And then they are shocked when a fighter actually does get killed.

Although fatalities in baseball, football and boxing receive the widest publicity, other popular sports have a high fatality rate. The death olis Speedway classic each year is olis Speedway classics each year is notorious. And horse racing brings serious injury or death to many jockeys each year.

According to Sterling Young, secretary of the Jockey's Guild, there were 43 deaths among the tough little men who ride thoroughbreds on tracks across the nation in the 12-year period between 1945 and the first half of 1956. That is an average of nearly 4 deaths per year.

206 professional boxers — many of them ex-champions — are now totally or partially blind as a result of brutal punishment they absorbed in the ring.

Welfare Fund For Jockeys

Many more are seriously injured or permanently crippled in spills on the race track. Each year Guild members contribute a day's riding fees to a welfare fund which gives medical and financial aid to injured jockeys. Among those who have received aid in recent years:

Richard J. Cavalier was seriously hurt in 1954 at the age of 19 when his horse fell and rolled over him at Sportsman's Park in Chicago. He is completely paralyzed from the chest down.

Dewey Henshaw received a brain injury when thrown from his horse during a race at Gregham, Oregon, in 1954. Unconscious for weeks, he is permanently disabled now and will require lifelong assistance.

Joseph Buteau was hurt when his mount stumbled on leaving the starting gate at Lincoln Downs (near Providence, R. I.) in 1955. As the result of a severe spine injury, he still is confined to a wheelchair.

Samuel Vergara went down with his mount at Caliente in 1955. His spine was fractured, he too is confined to a wheelchair.

Phil Sage was injured in 1958 in a freak accident during a workout at Charles Town (West Virginia) when three horses crashed and were killed. He is paralyzed from the waist down.

15,000 Golf Injuries

In fact there are few sports in this country where fractures, dislocations, cuts and contusions are uncommon, and in which death does not result occasionally.

Take such an innocuous game as golf, for example. About 15,000 injuries from golf balls driven by "trigger-happy" players are reported each year. Only half of the injured are players; the rest are caddies, workmen, even passing motorists.

An additional 500 golfers are killed each year—by lightning. To say nothing of those killed by heat prostration and heart attacks brought on by the strenuous exertion.

Shrugging off the death toll, sports enthusiasts declare that the average individual is more likely to get killed driving the family car than in all the sports combined. And the statistics support this argument.

However the point is that most—if not all—sports accidents are unnecessary and could be avoided. The enormous toll of injury and death taken by competitive sports in this country could be sharply reduced, if not eliminated entirely.

All that is required is that the authorities pay more attention to the life and health of athletes, and less attention to the commercial aspects of these sports. ■■

Marilyn Monroe

The magazine commended him for an excellent job well done—and dumped the material he sent into the wastebasket. Instead, it printed the Orphan Annie yarn—considerably embellished in Time's inimitable style, of course—and thus helped to perpetuate the legend.

Norma Jeane Baker went to live at the Los Angeles Orphans Home shortly after her ninth birthday. Marilyn describes the institution as a sort of snakepit where she had to scrub floors and toilets and perform other dirty tasks. In return for all this drudgery, she says, she got five cents per month spending money.

"The last few months I was at the orphanage I had my salary doubled," she told one of her biographers. "I was promoted to washing dishes in the kitchen at 10 cents a month. And over the sink of dirty dishes I used to dream that some day I'd become a famous movie star and have a good salary and have a servant wash my dishes for me."

Impartial investigation discloses that the Los Angeles Orphan Home is a well-kept, privately-endowed institution superior in many respects to the average orphanage. The superintendent asserts that the only tasks assigned children there is to make their own beds and help set tables. At the time Norma Jeane lived there, young children received 25 cents per week spending money, older ones 50 cents per week.

Marilyn says she was "miserably unhappy" during the nearly two years she spent in this place. But her records there contain the following notation: "Behavior normal . . . bright, sunshiny . . . sleeps well, eats well . . . well behaved . . . participates in all activities . . . cooperative."

"Starved For Love"

When she was 11, authorities at the institution decided that Norma Jeane needed some family life. Mrs. Grace McKee Goddard, a friend of her mother, was appointed the child's legal guardian. For three years she lived with Mrs. Goddard's elderly aunt, Mrs. Anna Lower.

These were the happiest years of her childhood, Marilyn says. "Mrs. Lower changed my whole life. She was kind and gentle, she gave me the love and affection for which I was so starved."

They Whistled—She Wiggled

When Mrs. Lower (who was nearly 70) became too ill to take care of Norma Jeane, the girl went to live with Mrs. Goddard and her husband in their relatively comfortable home in Van Nuys, another suburb of Los Angeles. She was well treated and quite happy there.

At the age of 15 she had suddenly blossomed out. "Norma Jeane, the Human Bean"—as the kids used to call her—had developed into an attractive, precociously-developed sexy young woman who drew whistles of appreciation as she wiggled her shapely hips through the corridors of Van Nuys High School. She was popular with the boys, had many dates.

Her new-found happiness didn't last long. At the end of her first year in high school the Goddards decided to move to West Virginia. For some unexplained reason, they couldn't take Norma Jeane with them. She faced the unhappy prospect of returning to the orphan home or being placed in another foster home.

There was one alternative: marriage. According to Marilyn, her

"Aunt Grace" Goddard arranged her marriage to Jim Dougherty, a good-looking 22-year-old young man who lived next door and work on the night shift at the Lockheed Aircraft Company in nearby Burbank. (This was a few months after Pearl Harbor.)

Marriage Was Arranged

"If you don't marry her," Mrs. Goddard allegedly told Dougherty, "Norma Jeane will have to go back to the orphanage when we move."

So a few days after her 16th birthday Norma Jeane Baker and James Dougherty were married. "It was never a happy marriage, and it was never meant to be," says Marilyn sadly. She found keeping house on a slender budget and cooking three meals a day "a bore". In fact, she says, she was so desperately unhappy that a few months after her marriage she made an attempt—happily "not a very serious one"—at suicide.

She lived with Dougherty less than a year. In 1943 he joined the wartime Merchant Marine and shipped out. A couple of years later, while serving in the Pacific, he received a letter from Norma Jeane's lawyer announcing that she had filed suit for divorce. She got the decree in Reno, Nevada, in 1946.

"Jim and I never got along, and divorce was inevitable," Marilyn says.

Dougherty—now a cop in Van Nuys, and happily remarried—has a slightly different version. He says:

"She was easy to get along with. She was very domestic, liked to cook and gossip with the neighbors. She loved kids but never wanted to have any. She was too scared of the pain. So scared, in fact, that once when she thought she was pregnant she went completely psycho."

When he was on the night-shift at Lockheed, she used to pack a lunch for him. Often, when he opened his lunch box, he would find a billet-doux which said:

"Darling, as you eat this think of me at home asleep, dreaming of you. With love and kisses, your Norma Jeane."

Long Absence Caused Bustup

He blamed the bust-up of their marriage on his long absence in the merchant marine during the war. And he observed, revealingly:

"What she wanted out of marriage was not a husband, but a father!"

The rest of the Marilyn Monroe story is pretty much a matter of record. She worked in a war plant for a while, then started the long uphill climb to Hollywood stardom via the cheesecake circuit—including posing in the nude for calendar art.

$1,000,000 Per Year

When she got her first contract at 20th Century-Fox her name was changed from Norma Jeane Dougherty to Marilyn Monroe—Marilyn as a tribute to Marilyn Miller, Monroe because it was her mother's name. She went on from there to become one of the most successful and highest paid sexpots in history—a film star who now grosses more than a million dollars per year.

According to MM's biographers, her "sordid and unhappy" childhood has left deep psychological wounds which have never healed. And that allegedly accounts for all the emotional disturbances of her adult life:

Her unscrupulous trick of using anyone who can advance her career, then abruptly dumping them when they no longer are useful;

Her irritating habit of showing up at least an hour and a half late for all appointments, even when it upsets a shooting schedule and doubles the cost of a production;

Her notorious temper tantrums, outbursts and prima donna behavior on the set which antagonize actors, directors and producers and makes her one of the most heartily disliked stars in Hollywood;

Her numerous physical ailments and mental crackups;

Victim Of A Legend

The failure of her marriages to Joe DiMaggio and Arthur Miller.

The mere fact that her "sordid and unhappy" childhood is largely the product of her own imagination doesn't disprove this theory.

For Marilyn herself is the chief victim of the legend that she has helped create. She believes it implicitly. She no longer can tell where the unwanted, unloved waif Norma Jeane Baker ends and the great international sex symbol Marilyn Monroe begins.

And that's why some of the best psychiatrists in this country have been unable to help her solve her emotional problems. ■■

Marilyn has made up so many stories about her early life she no longer is sure where Norma Jeane Baker leaves off and the fabulous Monroe begins.

Facts On V.D.

VD. U.S. Navy figures, for example, show 31 cases of chancroid per 1,000 men as compared with only 21 per 1,000 for syphilis.

This would seem to indicate at least 9 million cases of chancroid alone in this country today!

It is believed that about half of that number in our population suffer from lymphopathia venereum. Dr. William Leifer, professor at the New York University College of Medicine, asserts that many—perhaps even a majority—of these cases are never reported. For this disease is most common in the slums where ignorance is widespread and medical facilities often not utilized.

Only about 2,000 cases of granuloma inguinale are reported each year in the entire nation. Yet intensive investigation by Georgia Public Health officials recently turned up 10,000 cases of this disease in the city of Augusta alone! Dr. Robert B. Greenblatt, who headed a special research team of medics for the Georgia Health Department, admitted that the infection is far more widespread than medical authorities have realized.

Exactly what are the characteristics of these three "unknown diseases"?

Destroys Large Areas Of Skin

Chancroid is an acute infectious disease of the genital organs incurred during sexual intercourse. It begins about 2 to 36 hours after infection with an inflamed swelling or pustule which soon breaks down to form a ragged ulcer. The ulcer (or chancre) is soft, and therefore can be easily distinguished from the syphilitic chancre, which is hard.

Chancroidal ulcers are always painful and bleed easily. They vary in size from a few millimeters to about two centimeters. Sometimes however they extend to gigantic proportions, and destroy large areas of the skin.

In men, this chancre usually breaks out on the foreskin, cord and shaft of the sexual organ. In females it generally is located on the skin at the entrance to the sex organs. The sores may spread to the thighs, abdomen and backside.

In about one-third of the cases nearby glands are involved. The "bubo" (swelling) is usually on one side of the groin, but may be bilateral. It starts as a painful, tender swelling about two weeks after infection. As the swelling increases, the skin over it reddens, thins and finally ruptures, leaving a pussy ulcer that slowly extends up and down the groin. If not treated, these ulcers may persist and drain for months.

With proper treatment, chancroid is easily cured. The most effective drugs are the sulfas and other antibiotics. Duration of the treatment varies from three to eight days. Within 24 hours the pain lessens, the ulcers begin to dry and heal.

Chancroid does not kill its victim, even if left untreated. But it is extremely unpleasant, and in severe cases crippling. Its sores are deeper than those of syphilis and much more painful. They may spread over the body and permanently destroy skin tissue.

In the early days in England this disease was known as the "Winchester goose" because it was commonly found among the prostitutes of Winchester, and in advanced cases the victim had to walk "like a goose" to ease his pain.

It is highly contagious. The Journal of the California Medical Association recently reported that 51 doctors had been infected merely by examination of afflicted patients.

Lymphopathia (also known as lymphogranuloma venereum) is perhaps the most serious of these "unknown diseases." Its symptoms, according to a report by the American Social Hygiene Association, are as follows:

"In men, as in chancroid, there is a "bubo" on one or both sides of the groin. But unlike chancroid, the bubo of lymphopathia is painless and often so small that it is never discovered.

"In women, the infection settles near the rectum or in the lymph gland of the pelvis. The swelling may block the rectum so completely that surgery is necessary to open it. The genitals too may swell, causing a condition known as elephantiasis, which may later become ulcerated and painful. Occasionally cancer develops on the site of these chronic sores."

Only a few days may elapse between sexual contact and the appearance of the first stage of the disease, a small blister which soon bursts and leaves a shallow grayish ulcer with clear-cut edges. The ulcer is not hard. It usually is painless and heals rapidly, without leaving a scar. These quickly-healing ulcers appear on the head and foreskin of the male sex organ, on the interior of the female sex organs. As noted, they may also extend to the rectum.

Chills And Fever

The second stage, enlargement of the nearby glands, usually takes place 7 to 14 days later. Pain in the groin, followed by a noticeable enlargement of the lymph glands, may be the only symptoms. The "bubos" soon form a large, single, tender, inflamed mass which usually breaks down and gives off pus.

This stage is usually accompanied by chills, sweat, fever, loss of weight, nausea, vomiting, headache, stiffness of the neck and chronicitis.

The third stage is elephantiasis, an acute swelling of the sex organs.

If left untreated, the disease may lead to a breakdown of tissue between the rectum and female sex organs, thus promoting bacterial infection of the whole system. This may lead to total exhaustion, and death.

Although the use of sulfa and other "miracle drugs" has improved chances of a cure, treatment is not successful in all cases. Sometimes it is impossible to bring about a cure. Advanced cases may require extensive surgical and plastic repairs.

Although it is rare, patients sometimes do die of lymphopathia, if the disease progresses far enough.

Not Contagious

The third of the "known" venereal diseases, granuloma inguinale, is the most mysterious of all. In fact, it may not be a true VD. It is classed as one because it produces typical venereal sores on the genitals. However there is no proof that it is spread through sexual intercourse. In fact case histories indicate that an infected individual rarely infects a healthy bed-partner, even when the sores are open.

Granuloma inguinale is widespread in tropical and subtropical climates. In the United States it is most found in the Southern states.

The disease starts as a small, red painful swelling or nodule, usually on the surface of the sex organs. It may also appear on the groin, rectum, face and neck. These nodules increase in size, break down and spread, Unlike lymphopathia, however, the lymph glands are not involved.

The spread of the disease is slow and relentless, there is no tendency to spontaneous healing. As healthy tissue is destroyed it is replaced by red, moist, oozing and evil-smelling granulation tissue which crumbles and bleeds. In the process, the genital organs are gradually destroyed.

Complete cure can be obtained in practically all cases by means of such medication as drugs of the mycin group. Within 48 hours after the start of treatment the pain subsides, the lesions dry, healthy tissue begins to form. In one to two weeks complete healing with scar formation takes place.

What makes granuloma inguinale so dangerous is the difficulty of diagnosis. It may be confused with other diseases. A recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association reported the following case:

Cureable In Early Stages

A young woman, reported near death from cancer of the uterus, was admitted to a hospital. Having diagnosed cancer, her doctor had stood by helplessly as the disease spread and destroyed her uterus, nearby organs, even some of the bone in her legs and arms.

But thorough examination and tests at the hospital disclosed that the patient was not suffering from cancer, but from granuloma inguinale! The patient was cured, patched up and sent home,

The tragic part of this case is the fact that had the correct diagnosis been made in time, the victim could have been completely cured without the loss of irreplaceable bone, and without the need for extensive surgery to keep her alive!

All three of the "unknown" venereal diseases are easily cureable in their early stages; all but lymphopathia can be cured even in the latter stages. However medical authorities unanimously agree that the best cure for these three diseases—as for their better-known companions, syphilis and gonorrhea—is prevention.

In other words, be "good". And if you can't be "good", be careful.

But if you have been careless and get VD run—do not walk—to the nearest doctor or clinic for treatment.

You'll not only save pain and trouble, you may save your life.

Rock Hudson

Well, not quite every minute. Rock still found time to try and make time with Lori Nelson and Ann Blyth.

The way Rocky was facing up to his fears of females one would think he'd either conquer it or wind up a screaming idiot.

With his future pretty well secured now Rock met Betty Abbott, the first of many near misses in the marriage department. She was a script girl at Metro and, according to Rocky, understood him perhaps better than any girl he's ever known. They were on a merry-go-round for a while but, like all those who went before her, she missed the brass ring. When asked by a reporter why no marriage was in the offing the Rock replied, "You don't pick a wife the way you do an avocado. There's more to it than that."

This from the guy who professes to be afraid of females. Comparing them to avocados yet.

There are many stories as to how Rocky met Phyllis Gates. He says he met her in supermarket—but he also says he's afraid of females so let's discount that. She says she met him in the office of his agent, Henry Willson and, since she worked there it sounds plausible. But no matter how, the fact remains that they did meet. And when they did the Rock crumbled. Before he could even think of, much less say, femalephobia, she had him hooked, lock, stock and Rock.

It was the first time in history that a man ever married his phobia.

Fought Tooth And Nail

After a little over a year of complete and utter unhappiness, Phyllis filed for divorce. And if Rock had any great fear of the fair sex he certainly didn't show it when he fought Phyllis tooth and nail over her alimony demands. He wound up giving her $250.00 a week for the next ten years. Certainly not enough to make a guy who earns between three and four hundred thousand dollars a year holler "uncle".

During the divorce Rock went into seclusion, and the press agents had a field day. "Once bitten, twice shy," headlined one columnist; "He'll surely be a woman hater now," said another; "Rock's a recluse," itemed a third.

Rock claims he never rubs elbows with the fair sex and maybe he doesn't. But it sure looks like he's rubbing noses with Gina Lollobrigida here.

Shy Away From The Shes

What did robust Rock have to say? Not very much. The only clue to his feelings was a statement he made shortly after the divorce was granted. "I would like a whole new life," he said, "I've learned by mistakes. I've learned what not to do."

If by "what not to do," Rocky meant he was going to shy away from the shes he was once again not stretching the truth, he was snapping it. The ink was hardly dry on his first alimony check when Hudson was again chasing the chicks.

The first one he caught was Deborah Power the widow of Tyrone Power. Hitting it off immediately upon meeting they comforted each other. But when the eyes of the widow disclosed she was set for another fling on the sea of matrimony Rock took off like a fox on the day of the chase.

And he didn't stop running until he reached Mexico where he went to work on The Day of The Gun for Universal International. While on location, Rock, a water skiing fan flew 200 miles each weekend to Acapulco, a resort on the southern coast of Mexico. And it was there, while skimming over the briny that Rock crossed towlines with a "fearful" little filly named Erika Carlson and literally and figuratively flipped head over heels.

They went to bullfights together and they went to movies together. They hit the cocktail lounges and they made the rounds of the nightclubs. And late one night after an evening on the town they went for a drive on the outskirts of Mexico City.

Sweet Little Nothings

The dialogue went something like this.

Rock: "It's a beautiful night, isn't it?"

Erika: "Yes. I knew it would be. I've driven along here many nights. Sometimes alone, sometimes with ..."

Rock: "Sometimes with a date?"

For a moment there was silence then Erika asked, "Rock?"

"Yes?"

"Would it seem unreal if I told you that tonight, right now, here with you, the moon seems a little brighter, the hills seem more beautiful, than they ever have before? Does it sound crazy?"

"No it doesn't," Rock answered, "and I understand that better than you think because I feel exactly the same thing."

Rock Flew The Coop

The car zoomed off in the darkness and if Rocky had any further "fears" he certainly didn't display them that night. For a guy who's afraid of females he certainly does know how to talk to them.

It was a real romance but when the shooting on The Day Of The Gun ended—so did it. And the betting around Hollywood and Vine is that Erika will never see the handsome Hudson again. Unless, of course, she happens to wangle a pass for The Day Of The Gun.

When Rocky bought his yacht The Khairuzham he made another of his famous statements, that being: "Never am I going to bother with a girl aboard The Khairuzham. The Khairuzham's my girl, my date."

Well the next beauty in his life, Linda Cristal scuttled the hell out of that declaration. She "scared" the matinee idol so much that he forgot everything he ever said and took her cruising and carousing up and down the Pacific Ocean in—you guessed it—The Khairuzham. And if the boat was jealous it never showed it as the yacht was nothing but yar throughout the whole cruise.

So we come to the present day and the guy who has probably been "scared" more times than a canary in a household full of tomcats, is still in there pitching.

The Second Time Around

This time he's returned to an old romance. Marilyn Maxwell, by name. Maybe the Rock has developed a new line (if that Acapulco bit is any indication, he sure did) and figures he'll impress the babe with the tantalizing torso the second time around.

Intimates claim he's really gone on her and may even ask her to marry him. As yet there's been no real indication of this but if Rock ever says, "Marriage scares me, it really scares the hell out of me," then make book on it.

Because with this guy it's the things that scare him the most that he digs the most.

Sex In Russia

The average guide assigned to the average tourist looks like something left over from a Greenwich Village rummage sale. Like a streetcar conductor, her only purpose is to escort the visitor along a pre-determined route.

But for the chosen few—the influential foreigner with secrets the Kremlin wishes to share—a bevy of beauties is on tap to cater to every whim. For these tourists, there are even smiles from the hotel cops, the desk clerks and the hall porters. And the welcome mat is out in front of the bedroom door.

Corny? Completely. But it works. In capitalistic America, "he who has, gets." In communistic Russia, "he who has secrets, gets sex." ■■

Dinah Shore

was, for most of their eighteen years. As one associate pointed out, "How can they say it was because George's career was slipping and he couldn't take second billing? His career is just where it's always been—solid and successful and unspectacular."

But failure has touched Dinah Shore for the first time since, as she said, "I bombed as a movie star." Then she goes on to "explain" her failure by saying, "In each film I was given parts in which my father ran an unsavory joint while I was an ingenue daughter, so innocent I scarcely knew there was a difference between men and women. I never got any further, script-wise, than my first picture, 'Belle of the Yukon'."

Not Particularly Photogenic

Dinah had hoped to get the part of Julie in "Show Boat" and said, loyally, "Of course, there couldn't have been a more perfect Julie." When the interviewer paused to point out, in astonishment, that, "You and Ave Gardner aren't at all the same type," the Dinah temper flashed back with, "I know. We don't look alike—unfortunately—" so the poor, embarrassed interviewer had to say lamely, "I didn't mean that—I mean—you can sing."

Dinah Shore will admit that she is not "particularly photogenic" but she will not admit that, as a result, she has to accept second billing anywhere, and, indeed, since the time she broadcast her own radio show, "Dinah Shore in Person," had sung on Eddie Cantor's Time to Smile radio show and had appeared at the Hollywood opening of the Stage Door Canteen, there have been no major setbacks in her glittering career. She bombed in movies but soared to the top in TV, where much of her success can be explained that she's not a woman other women dislike. "She doesn't seem to have a bitchy bone in her body," as Pete Martin remarked of her in his Post series on the star.

That's Dinah success cue, and her failure cue, and this is usually so.

The very personality trait that enables a star to hit the jackpot will very often trip him up and send him skidding to the bottom. Because Dinah hides her emotions and, so far, has hidden them well. She has a volcanic temper when she lets go but is mostly a "loner" who keeps her troubles to herself. She says it's because, "I don't believe in upsetting other people by telling them unhappy things they can't do anything about," but more than that it's because Dinah Shore has an image of herself and she has been fantastically true to that image. It is an image that reveals a nice, gay, generous, attractive girl who wouldn't hurt a fly. She seems to be all the "do gooders" rolled into one. She kept up the facade of a happy marriage by sheer force of will power. How could any husband come out and say, "I can't stand this forceful, domineering, driving woman who never quarrels publicly, doesn't drink or smoke, is a wonderful mother, has a name untouched by scandal." It is well known that the "good" woman is the hardest to hit back at, and many a man, married to a shrew, has had to go along for years hearing his friends tell him what a wonderful wife he has.

George Montgomery is not without blame in the breakup, but actually, it is a career break-up in that it has been the blow to Dinah of her own career stumbling that has caused her to strike out, to lash back, to swing the spotlight away from her own temporary failure and put it onto the failure of their marriage. Anyone can understand a wife who is hurt by her husband's attention to another woman, and their divorce will be rich in its rewards of publicity and equally rich in its portrayal of Dinah Shore bearing up nobly and quietly in the face of the double misfortune which hit both career and marriage at the same time.

Dinah Got Finer

Dinah's father didn't think her equipped to handle the men, and the problems that would come her way, either, when she came to New York from Nashville, Tennessee.

"When I left Nashville, Daddy warned me, 'There are a hundred singers for every job you're after.' He didn't want me to break my heart. But after the usual weeks of pavement pounding and bell ringing, which her well-to-do father financed, she got an audition on New York's WNEW, and when she was done, Martin Block, who couldn't remember her name—which was then Fanny Rose Shore—kept calling her "That Dinah girl." After a while they dropped the "that" and "girl" and Frances Shore had a new name. Then the musicians' magazines, such as Metronome and "Down Beat" went for her, christened her, "Le Jazz Hot," and got her her first big break with Ben Bernie's radio show. Then when George Washington Hill, owner of merican Tobacco Company, happened to hear her singing on his program one night, and screamed, "Get her off of there!" people practically fell over themselves in their eagerness to fire her.

When He Says Grow—They Grow

But Dinah Shore had a direct, simple singing style that was in sharp contrast to the women singers of that day, who belted them out so hard they came back at them from the opposite wall. And she wouldn't change it. She knew what she wanted, always, did Dinah. And to keep her marriage, which was important to her because George Montgomery did put her interests ahead of his Dinah compromised by posing with him in public, hugging him hard and praising, when she was not praising his ability as a carpenter, his other genius: a green thumb. Asked how she managed to raise the rare fruit-bearing banana trees that help decorate their estate, Dinah said, "If George says, 'Grow' they wouldn't dare not to grow."

Far from wondering at the final break-up, one wonders what kept this marriage going for eighteen years. Probably it was one of those, "I can take it if you can," deals in which each partner received many rewards. George's picture making, Dinah's personal appearances, often kept them apart weeks or months at a time to relieve some of the pressure. When I interviewed her in New York a couple of years ago, after she had returned from a triumphant tour of entertaining troops in Europe, George was in the room acting his usual quiet, loving, a ways glad-to-help-dear, role. He had flown to New York with the children, and unless one happened to be particularly tuned to such things, one might have thought them as happy as they pretended to be. But the feeling of strain, of tension was there. One could not help but realize that, once the visitor had gone and the door was firmly closed behind him, fireworks would erupt.

HE HAD REPORTS PROVING THAT

PEOPLE LIVE TO BE 120 AND OLDER without arthritis, rheumatism, weakness, constipation and nervousness.

I SAT LIKE A CHILD BEFORE MY MASTER AS THIS MAN I HAD NEVER SEEN BEFORE TOLD ME AN AMAZING STORY. He stood tall and strong, with bronzed skin, white beard and unforgettable eyes that had seen the suffering of all mankind and wonder of all creation. His eyes held me with a grip of iron as he started his incredible story!

DETERMINED TO LEARN SECRET

"It started with news reports and legends of a strange, wonderful people who lived in the Himalaya Mountains. They lived to be 120 and older, without arthritis, rheumatism, constipation, weakness, nervousness and other afflictions that are common to us. With God's help," he said, "I was determined to learn their secret, not only for my own tortured life, but as a blessing for everyone."

"I visited many lands. Lonely travelers would tell me amazing stories of people much like those I read about, where pain and illness were rare and even the aged walked with the vitality of youth. Each traveler tried to learn their strange secrets. They failed. I swore that I would not!

I LIVED IN CONSTANT PAIN

"Two long years passed. I lived in constant pain. I had given up hope when I entered a small village; magically tranquil, unrushed. Even the aged seemed radiant with vitality. I learned that they had a fantastically long life span. Illness and pain were rare. I was convinced they were much like the people of the Himalayas. I told them of my pain and begged to learn their secrets. They refused. They told me of greedy profit-seekers who asked for these secrets."

"As I lived among them a change began taking place within my body. My crippling mental agony was gone. The torturous load left my aching body and, as if by a miracle, I felt stronger, younger than ever. I had been blessed. I prayed to find a way to show them that they could trust me with their secrets. I prayed aloud. Tears welled in my eyes. And in that gray dawn, as I knelt in the garden, my prayers were heard by an elder of the village who had entered unobserved."

"The next day I was called before the council. They spoke of many unfortunates who came seeking aid for arthritis, rheumatism, sleeplessness, constipation, tension, weakness—the list was endless. None were turned away, without an invitation to live there and revitalize their sick bodies through the amazing customs and natural resources of the villagers. But none were found worthy of trust. The council never revealed their secrets. They waited a long time. But now, if I agreed not to reveal their identity, they would tell me all I wished to know. I agreed to disclose only what they desired."

THE HIDDEN SECRETS

"They told me of their amazing health laws and ability to keep at the peak of health. Then, reverently, they revealed still another secret, their Christta-Plan, a constant symbol of their search for the hidden secrets of man's mind and body. This was the one secret they had chosen to allow me to reveal to my people. I was amazed. In addition to their normal practices of healthful living, every day they took a small amount of a powder, made from a secret formula. This was part of their wondrous Christta-Plan created to extend nu-tri-ti-tory potency, strength and power. They gave me all the details.

"As I left, they said, 'May the Christta-Plan bring joy to your people, and may God bless you.'"

Thus the stranger concluded. I sat in silence. A force more powerful than logic moved me to believe. He handed me the Christta-Plan and formula. He wanted no reward—just my promise to bring his discovery to the world. I said I would. He thanked me and left, never revealing his identity.

After he left, I knew that while my faith in him was complete, others would ask questions—suffering people with ailments of all kinds. I asked my doctor what I could tell the millions who would trust in me. He examined what I had and asked its source. I told him I had sworn never to reveal its origin. He then said that most certainly this Christta-Plan and formula was conceived for one wonderful, specific, blessed purpose; to fortify every part of your body that may be starved for any one or even all of its ingredients—muscles, blood, arteries, tissues, ligaments, bones, and joints of your feet, ankles, legs, back, neck, arms, wrists, hands, fingers; even your eyes, chest, nerves, and brain—yes, all parts of your body! Hearing these blessed words, I gave a prayer of thanks that my faith had been rewarded.

Now I am revealing this to you so you'll know the Christta-Plan's entire history—how I discovered it, its blessed benefits and function. I pray that you trust your faith and let me bring this same Christta-Plan and formula to you. Accept my free goodwill offer at my expense so that you can prove to yourself the many benefits which may be yours.

One could imagine Dinah saying, "You didn't have to just sit there, George . . ." and George replying calmly, "How could I have interrupted? Besides, I might not have said the right thing."

It is said that he who marries money earns it and he who marries a woman marked for success also earns any relief such success grants him from the cares of lesser men caught in the marital trap. When Dinah and George were married, friends gave the marriage six weeks. When Dinah went into TV, they gave it thirteen weeks. The Dinah Shore show lasted through twelve seasons, the marriage through the snows and summers of eighteen years during which a daughter, Missy, now fourteen was born and a son, Jody, now twelve, adopted into the family group. Dinah rises at seven each morning to breakfast the children before they leave for school. "They both have positive personalities," said Dinah, "and I want them to stay that way."

In other words, they have the personalities Dinah has chosen for them, as she has chosen everything else from the magnificent wardrobe which regularly lands her among the "Ten best dressed women" each to her husband's role in her year. It is, after all, the Dinah Shore show and she wants it to stay that way.

Dinah Foresaw Divorce

But Dinah herself said something, two years ago, which she may well be pondering on now as first her show and then her marriage come to an end:

"I don't think any woman finds it easy to face the hard, cold fact of growing old. I'd like to be able to be philosophical about it when people will no longer accept me as a singer. A television camera is ruthless. I can tell myself I look twenty-one until I really believe I am twenty-one, but I can't fool that camera. I hope that when that day comes, I'll have so many things filling my life I won't feel used up and discarded. If I am a good wife, it will be there, still, when the spotlights, the microphones and the TV cameras are gone."

George Shunted Aside For Years

But, unfortunately, other people don't wait upon us. The husband who has been shunted aside for years and told, more or less, to go off and bite nails if he doesn't like it, is not automatically there when the woman suddenly wants to be a wife, a woman, and not an organization or a public symbol. A woman who whittles away at a man's masculinity, will find that when she is ready to be a woman he often is not ready to be a man. He might be ready to be a playboy; he might be ready to have another try at the marriage - go - round with a new, young partner who will infuse fresh blood and fresh desires into his own veins. But he is not apt to be on hand as a sort of built-in, old age insurance.

That is what happened to the Shore-Montgomery marriage. Age, over-exposure to the public, caught up with Dinah Shore as they do with everyone else. Frightened, she lashed out and switched the blame and the spotlight onto George Montgomery. As for George, with his own career as solid as ever, isn't it possible he's willing to get even, just a little? To leave Dinah alone just when she needs him most?

It looks that way. ■■

ing Aly Khan as correspondent. He got the divorce, after one of the most sensational and salacious court sessions in staid English history.

Prince Karim Got The Nod

Aly married Joan, and she bore him two sons: Karim and Prince Amyn. But Aly was never one to allow marriage to interfere with his wolfish pastimes, and in 1949 the marriage was formally dissolved. She never remarried, continued to enjoy the respect and admiration of her ex-father-in-law. It was due to her influence, according to rumor, that the old man passed over Aly Khan and Sadrud-din in favor of Prince Karim, in his will.

The 56-year-old Dowager Begum is a Frenchwoman. As Yvette La-Brousse she was a famous beauty queen who won the title "Miss France" in 1936. A few years later she met and married the fat old Aga Khan. A statuesque, determined woman, she soon became a key figure in the daily task of running the affairs of the vast religious and temporal empire her husband headed.

She still is beautiful, and she still dominates the Ismaili empire. Karim is even more closely attached to her than to his mother. For soon after her divorce from Aly, the Princess Joan packed off her sons to an exclusive boarding school in Switzerland. Karim got his only real affection from the Begum, with whom he spent all his holidays.

Tied to the apron-strings of these two domineering females, there isn't much Karim can do without their approval.

At the time he was named head of the Ismailis Karim was a senior at Harvard. He lived modestly and quietly on a relatively modest fortune conferred on him by his grandfather. Reputed to be a studious and bookish young man—in sharp contrast to his notorious father and uncle—he graduated with honors and went on to post-graduate studies in Oriental history and the Arabic and Urdu tongues.

Chased By She Wolves

No sooner had he become Aga Khan than he found himself in a den of ravenous she-wolves. Many a dazzling and designing dame batted her false eye-lashes in his direction. After all, diamonds are a gal's best friend. And what can be friendlier than a Prince Charming who linked with many frolicsome fillies.

Going ga-ga over glamor gals eventually cost both Princes the job of guarding the gold and weighing in on diamonds. It is reported that their notorious boudoir exploits was the chief reason their father passed them over on his deathbed in favor of quiet, studious Prince Karim.

To make sure that the new Aga Khan kept his nose to the grindstone, the old man left the purse-strings to his vast fortune firmly in the hands of two women: his widow, the Dowager Begum Yvette, and his favorite ex - daughter - in-law, the Princess Joan.

Joan is the daughter of an English peer. In 1935 when she first met Aly Khan—then just beginning his career as Playboy of the Western World—she was the wife of brewer-her Thomas L. E. B. Guinness. As the result of that meeting stout Guinness filed suit for divorce, nam-gets bucketfuls of diamonds every birthday? They wouldn't have minded if he put on poundage and became even fatter than his grandfather!

Karim ignored them all, stuck close to his studies, seldom indulged in dates. According to his closest friend at Harvard, John Fell Stevenson—son of Adlai—he was “not unusually” interested in women.

“All that really matters to me is my work,” he told reporters. “All the rest is tripe.”

He took his job as Aga Khan very seriously. “When he died, my grandfather left me enormous responsibilities,” he said on another occasion. “Everything he did not have time to do in his own lifetime, I now have to do.”

And he indicated that he was a dedicated religious leader. “Religion is the strongest thing in my life,” he declared. “It is fundamental with me. It motivates both the community of Ismailis and myself.”

However soon after his graduation he began to display signs of following in his father's footsteps. He too developed a passion for fast sports cars, announced his intention of upholding the honor of the Ismailis in the racing world by maintaining his grandfather's celebrated stable.

His name was linked in public print with a wide variety of beautiful young fillies. For a time Jill Weldon and Henrietta Tiarks, leading London debts, were his favored companions. They were succeeded by lovely Patricia Rawlings.

Others in Karim's international stable of beautiful babes were Jane Conway O'Reilly, of St. Louis, and Natalie Trundy of New York; French starlet Ann-Marie Merson; Princess Marie of Savoy; and two handsome Hungarian sub-debs, lovely Andrea Milos de Vangel and Countess “Bunny” Eszterhazy.

No Time For Marriage

An apparent winner in the mad race for Karim's hand (and fortune) soon appeared in the person of Sylvia Casablanca, 17-year-old daughter of a wealthy Mexican industrialist. They sneaked off to Switzerland for week-ends together. Karim wanted to marry her, but the two dominating females in his life objected.

“You're too young,” his mother insisted. “Don't spoil your life by a hasty marriage.”

“You have too many responsibilities to your people to think of marriage at this time,” his step-grandmother warned.

In the face of such united opposition, the proposed marriage fizzled out.

Then Karim began squiring around Tracy Pelissier, a 19-year-

Prince Karim — the kid who wants to get married — sits on a white satin throne and receives homage from representatives of ten million moslems.

old British schoolgirl. They romanced together all over the blue Mediterranean, cruised to Capri on a yacht named—significantly enough—My Love. She proudly displayed a huge sparkler which Karim had given her, said it was an engagement ring.

Duty To Ismailis Important

"She's too young," objected his mother.

"Your people need you," decreed his step-grandmother. "It's time you took a trip to see how they're doing." She pointedly reminded him that his duty as head of the Ismailis is to dispense largesse to his subjects, not to female Europeans.

So poor Tracy got lost and Karim took off on a 15,000-mile jaunt by jeep through the back-country of Pakistan, winding up in the remote Himalayan State of Hunza on the borders of Russia and Red China, where many Ismailis live.

Disclosing that he was devoting himself to his favorite project—"a home for every Ismaili family"—the young Aga Khan said it was a heavy responsibility. "And I'm anti-irresponsibility," he added.

Like his grandfather, Karim believes that the best way to handle the affairs of his people is from a distance—in Paris or on the Riviera, for instance — where there are plenty of worldly diversions to ease the spiritual task of solving the weighty problems of the Ismailis.

Upon his return to Paris after touring Pakistan, Karim began to tour the hot-spots again. Fortune-hunting females from all over the world began twitching their torsos into the bistros he haunted so the young Oriental potentate could see and appreciate them. And Karim is not unappreciative.

It was in a nightclub at St. Tropez, in the south of France, that he first spotted Annouchka von Meks. He was immediately smitten with her slender, delicate beauty. After a whirlwind courtship, he began pressuring his female guardians to set the date for his marriage.

Both adamantly opposed it. They warned him that it might cost his job, if not his life.

To date he has refused to let them talk him out of it. In his interview with newspapermen, he tried to cut the ground from under at least one of their more serious objections.

Protector Of The Faith

"If I marry a European woman, she naturally will have to adopt the Mohammedan faith," he said. "After all, I am the guardian and protector of the religion of my people."

He confided that Annouchka is prepared to forsake her own faith for his. She is studying the Koran and taking instruction in the Moslem religion from a mullah, a Mohammedan priest. As soon as she completes the course, he said, their engagement will be officially announced.

He also revealed that he had presented Annouchka to the five top Ismailis who help him govern the sect. After talking to her at length, they finally gave their approval to the marriage, on condition that the bride immediately embrace their faith.

"A Man Needs A Woman"

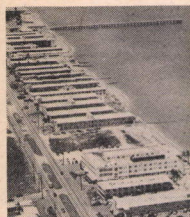

"I will marry whomever and whenever I wish," Karim declares defiantly. "With the help of God, the day will come soon. A man in my position needs a good woman to help him."

Nobody can dispute the fact that every man needs a "good woman." The trouble is, the Aga Khan's mother and step-mother are determined to marry him off to "a good woman" of their choice. They refuse to cut him loose from their apron-strings.

There's too much at stake—power, influence, and money.

In this tug-of-war, poor Karim will be lucky to escape with his life.

Motels

but to no avail. Then he tries letting his money talk and before the session is over he's persuaded the cop to take a bribe. The bribe usually cleans out the would-be lover, but what does he care. He just beat 5 years in jail, and a $5,000 fine. He thinks.

After lover boy takes off, breathing a sigh of relief at his stroke of luck, the "cop", the chippie and the motel owner whack up the dough. Then the "cop" drives the doll back to her home base and the whole stinking racket starts all over again.

Needless to say this dodge can be run without the knowledge of the motel owner because it's all handled so quickly and so quietly. As we said before, most tourist cabin owners are pretty much on the up and up, but because of the rotten ones who are out for the fast buck and don't care who they hurt getting it, the whole business has gotten a bad name.

Abortion Kills 10,000 Women

And maybe if more states investigated this rottenness a good number of the 10,000 women who die every year as the direct result of criminal abortions could be saved. As we said before, roadside cabins make the almost perfect hospital room for quack abortionists. The girl registers so the doctor is never seen. If complications arise the girl can stay there and be treated as long as she can afford to pay. If she dies, the "doc" just takes off and leaves her there. He can't be linked in any way to the crime. The motel owner claims to be just an innocent businessman who was used.

It's no secret that abortions can be secured, for a price, in virtually every American city. The average price is around $500.00. One Baltimore doctor received as much as $6500. While recently, after a Detroit abortionist died his safe deposit box was opened and in it was found $1,000,000 in cash.

For a while abortions were on the downgrade. Doctors wouldn't risk them because they had no real safe place to perform them. But when it was found that the ever-present motel makes the ideal operating room the racket again flourished.

A Perfect Hospital Room

Dr. Henry Blank, a graying, 58-year-old ex-resident of Great Neck, Long Island, admitted to doing over 7,000 abortions in the course of a quarter of a century. Most of the earlier operations took place in his home. But he, like other get-rich-quick doctors, quickly found the convenience of the roadside rest, so he transferred his business to highway havens in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. He avoided arrest for so long because he was smart enough not to use the same motel twice.

And so it goes. The list of crimes that take place in these highway hotels is long and sordid.

In North Carolina 15 women rented out an entire motor court and brought along their boyfriends. The whole group cavorted in the nude until dawn when the police slapped them in the pokey.

A homosexual, who maintained a room in a midwestern motel, was jailed when mothers complained that their grammar school children were being "used" by him.

In Minnesota 25 members of a teen-age sin club held a mixed pajama party in one of the many roadside rests in the area. They had lots of gin, beer and whiskey but everyone forgot to bring pajamas.

Tea For $10.00 A Pop

A motel in South Carolina advertised a "tea party" every Saturday night. For those not in the know a "tea party" is a marijuana party. The price was $10.00 per couple and it ran quite a few Saturday nights before the police got wise and padlocked the joint.

The outrages that have taken place in these businesses that were originally constructed for weary motorists would fill this book. But why go on? Pick up a copy of any daily newspaper and if it doesn't list at least one crime that took place in, had its start in, or wound up in a motel, this reporter will personally eat it without benefit of salt and pepper.

What it all boils down to is that motor courts should be inspected regularly. Registers should be closely investigated and spot checks should be made on motorists using the facilities.

The legitimate motel owner won't complain. He, more than anyone, would love to rid the business of the vermin that is giving it a bad name.

So let's have some action. The reputation—or even the life—you save may be your own. ■■

Doctors Report "Miracle" Royal Jelly May Change Your Whole Life!

How would you like to awaken one morning and find yourself possessed with a marvelous sense of "well-being," full of New Pep and Vitality? Wouldn't it be wonderful if you could feel increased vigor and enjoy a "new lease on life"? Now... Scientists say this may happen to you!

Royal Jelly May Mean "New Life" After 40

Reports from Europe tell of an 80 year old Gentleman whose physical condition would make a 50 year old envious. The man regularly partakes of Royal Jelly. According to a book published in England, when Russian Officials sent questionnaires to all the Centenarians (people over 100 years old) in the Soviet Union, more than half of them turned out to be beekeepers.

From France and Germany come amazing Scientific Reports of outstanding results obtained with Royal Jelly. One French Authority writes of women over 40 feeling increased sexual vitality and of a wonderful feeling of "youth and well-being" that resulted from continued use of Royal Jelly.

At this moment, in Leading Universities, Scientists and Nutritionists and Medical Doctors are doing extensive work to determine the exact role that Royal Jelly may play in Your Sex Life, Your Health and Your Emotional Condition. These researchers are especially interested in its effects on those who have passed middle age. They are working on Royal Jelly because this rare NATURAL FOOD has been indicated to contain remarkable Energy and Sex Factors.

Doctor Paul Niehans, famous Swiss Surgeon and experimenter with Hormones says: "ROYAL JELLY is an activator of the glands"... Dr. Niehans discovered that many minor disabilities which bother millions of people such as tiredness, irritability, headaches, insomnia, physical and spiritual convulsions, were easy to treat with the Cellular Therapeutics of the Secretion of the bees which we call Royal Jelly.

TRANQUILITY AND BLESSED RELIEF MAY AWAIT THE ROYAL JELLY USER

Here Are Some of the Symptoms of Approaching Old Age which Make Men and Women over 35 feel devitalized and "played out" before their time: PHYSICALLY, MENTALLY and EMOTIONALLY... "Human Dynamos" slow down • Dizziness • Weak feeling • Vague aches and pains • Listless, "don't care attitude" • Lacks recuperating power • Fatigues easily • Fails to get rest from sleep • Sexual weakness • Loss of mental efficiency and ability • Unable to make simple decisions • Can't concentrate • Nervousness • Tense feeling • Moodiness • Lack of emotional control • Loss of interest in work • Loss of self-confidence • Feeling of futility • Worries needlessly • Fear of future • Insecurity • Failing memory • No zest for life • Difficult to get along with • Embarrassed

Now You May Benefit from ROYAL JELLY... the "ELIXIR of YOUTH" of the Queen Bee

Two years ago, the world-famous French Nutrition Expert, Bernard Desouches wrote a book praising Royal Jelly as a Life Prolonger and Extraordinary Stimulator of Sexual Virility of the Queen Bee.

The Best Laboratories of Europe gave the Doctors of the 2nd International Congress of Biogenetics a great surprise when they confessed that their famous Medical Cream for the skin was prepared with Royal Jelly. The Doctors all knew that with this cream sagging breasts were raised and mammary glands of women were activated.

ROYAL JELLY Wins Approval Before Congress* of 5,000 Doctors

The men of Medical Science who have experimented with Royal Jelly, claim that Royal Jelly will perform the function of INCREASING MEN & WOMEN'S WANING POWERS.

Jenasol R. J. Formula 50, in the opinion of these reputable physicians removes any possible danger for the layman in the use of these powerful, concentrated nutritional extracts. This is the latest and possibly the greatest advance in the history of Medical Science. This combination, created under the strict supervision of a Registered, Licensed Pharmacist, and Medical Doctor, named "Jenasol R. J. Formula 50," makes the use of these amazing elements perfectly safe.

Every man and woman who feels "old" and "played out" before their time should seriously consider the use of "Jenasol R. J. Formula 50" to increase their pep and energy.

Dr. De Pomiane, 80-year-old French Scientist and the Senior among the Physicians and Biochemists attending the Congress, said the Bee Secretion might have been known to Ancient Indians, Greeks and Romans, and might have been the "food for the Gods" or "Nektar" mentioned in the Mythology of these Countries.

DISCOVERER OF INSULIN Dr. Frederick Banting

"The most complete Scientific Report on Royal Jelly was prepared under the direction of Dr. Frederick Banting.

"TEXAS A & M COLLEGE has been conducting experiments on Royal Jelly..." "PROFESSOR G. F. TOWNSEND of ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE is resuming research on Royal Jelly..."

Life May Begin Again After 40 as Queen Bee's Natural Food Rebuilds Man's Vitality and Drive

Royal Jelly is totally unlike honey, and has baffled scientists since the 1700's. In 1894, some of the mystery was dispelled when Leonard Borda, a French scientist, discovered that Royal Jelly is secreted by special glands located in the heads of worker bees whose job is to nurse the Queen.

Intrigued by the strange longevity and extraordinary sexual powers of the Queen Bee, leading scientists have been trying to discover the Secret Factor in Royal Jelly that so benefits the Queen Bee.

It is not surprising that Royal Jelly has attracted Medical Attention throughout the world... Here is the substance, the sole diet of the Queen Bee in which lies the secret of the difference between her and the rest of the hive. For the Queen lives to 6 years, whereas the 20 to 40 thousand worker bees and the few hundred drones live but a few short months. The Queen Bee larva looks like all the rest, including those of the female worker bees. But only SHE is fertile, producing some 400,000 eggs annually.

Her food is ROYAL JELLY, secreted from the glands of the worker bees. The ingredients are nectar and pollen, plus honey, combined in a mysterious way by Nature to make up the "miracle food" ROYAL JELLY...
